Drastic Measure for Supervision of Security Markets by Federal Trade Commission Is Introduced in Senate.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—President Roosevelt in a message to Congress this afternoon called for the enactment of a law regulating stock and commodity exchanges "for the protection of investors, for the safeguarding of values, and, so far as it may be possible, for the elimination of unnecessary, unwise and destructive speculation."

An immediate step toward the desired legislation was taken with the introduction of a market regulation bill by Senator Fletcher (Dem.) of Florida, chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee. The same bill was ready to be introduced in the House tomorrow by Representative Rayburn (Dem.) of Texas, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

More drastic than had been expected, the bill goes far beyond the recommendations of the Commerce Department Committee's report, which had proposed that broad discretionary powers be lodged with the Federal Trade Commission. The measure as submitted to the Senate contains 49 pages, and after dealing in great particularity with practices on the exchange, seeks to regulate the issuance of securities and to keep corporation officers from using their inside knowledge for personal profit.

The President's message follows: To the Congress: In my message to you last March proposing legislation for Federal supervision of national traffic in investment securities I said:

"This is but one step in our broad purpose of protecting investors and depositors. It should be followed by legislation relating to the better supervision of the purchase and sale of all property dealt with on exchanges."

"The exchanges in many parts of the country which deal in securities and commodities conduct, of course, a national business because their customers live in every part of the country. The managers of these exchanges have, it is true, often taken steps to correct certain obvious abuses. We must be certain that abuses are eliminated and to this end a broad policy of national regulation is required."

"It is my belief that exchanges for dealing in securities and commodities are necessary and of definite value to our commercial and agricultural life. Nevertheless, it should be our national policy to restrict, as far as possible, the use of these exchanges for purely speculative operations."

"I therefore recommend to the Congress the enactment of legislation providing for the regulation

SANKEY'S ACCOMPLICE GETS LIFE TERM FOR BOETTCHER KIDNAPING

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Feb. 9. GORDON ALCOORN pleaded guilty today to charges of conspiracy to kidnap for ransom in connection with the abduction a year ago of Charles Boettcher II, Denver broker. He was sentenced to life imprisonment at Leavenworth Federal penitentiary.

Alcorn was placed in custody of the United States Marshal and arrangements were made to start with him for Leavenworth.

GRANITE CITY STEEL
PLANT WILL REOPEN

Commonwealth, Closed Since 1931, to Resume About April 1 With 1000 Men.

The Commonwealth division of General Steel Castings Co., Granite City's largest industry, will reopen about April 1, employing about 1000 men, it was announced today. The plant has been shut down since September 1931.

Workers were engaged today preparing the equipment for reopening. Assistant general manager Earl Varnum said the force of 1000 would be increased as production required.

Varnum had not been advised what orders were on hand for the locomotive and box car frames made by the company. His instructions from headquarters of the company at Eddystone, Pa., were merely to reopen with a force of 1000 men. At its peak the plant employed about 4800 men.

Another steel plant, the Scullin Steel Co. in St. Louis, reopened yesterday, after having been closed since last fall. About 400 men went to work there.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 9.—A resolution proposing ratification of the child labor amendment to the United States Constitution was voted down yesterday by the Texas Senate, 17 to 11. It had passed the House.

Opponents said child labor was a matter for states to settle individually and suggested enactment of the amendment would restrict the work of youths on farms.

VERNE SANKEY,
KIDNAPER, HANGS
HIMSELF IN CELL

Notorious Gangster Ends Life in South Dakota Prison on Eve of His Arraignment.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Feb. 9.—Verne Sankey, notorious kidnaper, hanged himself in his cell at South Dakota penitentiary last night. When police caught him in a Chicago barber shop last week, he had no chance to use the poison pills he had hidden in his overcoat, but last night, on the eve of his arraignment on a charge of conspiracy to kidnap Charles Boettcher II of Denver, he made a noose from two neckties, stuffed a handkerchief into his mouth to prevent any involuntary outcry, and ended his life.

Sankey announced only a few days ago that he would plead guilty.

Collected $75,000 in Ransom.

The former railroad man and rancher planned his death carefully. He waited until the two guards on duty in his cell block were out of sight. Quickly he knotted the necktie-ropes to the bar of the cage, slipped the crude but strong noose about his neck, and stepped from his bunk. They found him dead, his body swinging from the bar.

He had engineered schemes that netted him $60,000 in the Boettcher case and $12,000 in the kidnaping of Haskell Bohn of St. Paul.

Gordon Alcorn, a companion seized in Chicago a day after Sankey, said: "I'll go into court and take mine that way."

With Sankey's passing, the Government lost its chance of definitely ascertaining if the former Canadian had any connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping murder.

He Leaves No Notes.

No notes were left by Sankey, who apparently had contemplated suicide since last Saturday when he appeared depressed. At that time he paced nervously in his cell, guards said.

An hour before he was found dead he appeared in good spirits, however, and sought to make arrangements to see his wife, Mrs. Fern Sankey, held in the county jail in lieu of $25,000 bond on a charge of conspiracy to kidnap as a result of the Boettcher abduction.

The body of Sankey was found by Frank Gilmore, one of his two guards. When Gilmore returned from getting a headache tablet for Alcorn, Sankey's body dangled from the cell bar.

Sankey had confessed to both the Boettcher and Bohn kidnapings. Alcorn had admitted participating in the Boettcher abduction. With Sankey's death and Alcorn's imprisonment, all of the gang behind the Boettcher seizure have been brought to justice. Three companions now are serving prison terms for the crime.

Mrs. Sankey became hysterical when told of her husband's death.

Began as a Bootlegger.

Reared on a farm near Oakland, Neb., Sankey went to Wilmont, S. D., as a youth and assisted his father in running a still. He later moved to a farm. Later he took up railroad work.

His first encounter with the law came in 1925 when he was arrested in Detroit Lakes, Minn., on a liquor transportation charge. A small matter of a cash bond was easily disposed of. Once posted, it was forgotten and Sankey forfeited it.

CHALLENGE

IN CONTEMPT
CASE TRIAL

W. P. MacCracken, Attorney, and L. H. Brittin, Carrier Official, Question Authority; Former's Arrest Ordered.

AVIATION OFFICERS
ACCUSED PRESENT

Removal of Correspondence Under Subpoena in Contract Investigation and Destruction of Letters Charged.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—After William P. MacCracken, former Assistant Secretary of Commerce under the Hoover administration, had challenged the power of the Senate to punish him for contempt by failing to appear for his scheduled trial at noon today, the Senate unanimously adopted a motion ordering the Sergeant-at-Arms to arrest him "forthwith," and to produce him before the Senate to show cause why he should not be punished.

Later L. H. Brittin, vice president of Northwest Airways, one of the four men before the Senate on charges, argued that the Senate had no authority to try him for contempt.

In a statement which he sent to the Senate, and which was read by the clerk, MacCracken denied that the Senate had any right under the Constitution to punish anyone for "a completed act." The Senate, he argued, can punish for contempt only for the purpose of "self-preservation," and that punishment for a "completed act" can only be inflicted by the courts.

He was the only one of four respondents who declined to appear. The others Hanshue, Gilbert L. Givvin, Washington agent of the same company and Col. Brittin were present and apparently prepared to defend themselves.

Sergeant at Arms Chesley Jurney telephoned Senator Black from the office of Frank J. Hogan, MacCracken's counsel, this afternoon, stating that Hogan declined to reveal MacCracken's whereabouts, but offered to lead Jurney to him if the Sergeant-at-Arms would allow him time to apply for a writ of habeas corpus. Black told Jurney to take whatever steps were necessary to arrest MacCracken, and produce him bodily in the Senate as soon as possible.

Jurney made a formal report to the Senate, stating he had been unable to find MacCracken, who had not been at his office since 11 a. m. He confirmed the fact that Hogan had refused to produce his client, although he had promised to do so, or to tell Jurney where he was. The Senate gave the sergeant-at-Arms additional time in which to serve the warrant, and voted to proceed with the trial of the other three respondents.

Brittin, Hanshue and Givvin, with their lawyers, then took their places in the rear of the Senate, opposite the five members of the investigating committee. Senator Key Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, president pro tem of the Senate, was in the chair. After Pittman had read the charges to the respondents, the Senate clerk read the Black report detailing the actions on which the contempt charges are based.

Brittin's Challenge.

In response to Senator Pittman's question, whether he had anything to say why he should not be punished, Brittin then presented a brief in which he challenged the Senate's authority to punish him. He proceeded with a lengthy defense of his conduct. Asserting that the papers he destroyed were "obsolete," that their destruction was a routine matter, and that they had no bearing on the Senate investigation.

Givvin, a slender, erect and obviously frightened young man, was called up next. He started to read his own statements. But his voice was so faint that several Senators protested, so the duty was taken over by the Senate clerk.

Refusal to Produce Letters.

The cases are the outcome of MacCracken's refusal to produce

Kidnaped Doctor Inspects Shack in St. Charles County, Says It Is "Very Like" the Place Where He Was Held.

NOT "ABSOLUTELY POSITIVE" ABOUT IT

One of Important Features of Adolph Fiedler's Statement Was That He Could Point Out House Used by Abductors.

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson of St. Louis County is convinced that the place where Dr. Isaac D. Kelley was first held prisoner, following his abduction on April 20, 1931, has been found.

Several characteristic details of the interior of the shack on a farm four miles southwest of St. Charles were found yesterday by the physician to be identical with those he noticed while he was held in captivity for ransom, so that he observed, "It's very like the place, but I cannot be absolutely positive."

One of the most important parts of the version of the sensational crime told by Adolph Fiedler, former Maplewood Justice of the Peace, published exclusively in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch, was that he could point out the place where the doctor was held prisoner. He did point out the St. Charles County farm, owned by John C. Johnson, 51-year-old Negro, as the place where Dr. Kelley was first held prisoner. Also, he named eight men and a woman as participants in the kidnaping plot.

"Would Convince Jury."

"It is obvious to me that Fiedler knows a lot about this crime," Prosecuting Attorney Anderson said today. "While Dr. Kelley was unwilling to say definitely 'this is the place,' his identification of characteristic details of the interior of Johnson's shack is just as convincing. I am sure a jury visiting the place with him would have no doubt that it was looking at the place where he was held. Interest in Fiedler's story has been greatly strengthened by confirmation of this essential detail."

Sheriff Is Impressed.

Sheriff Deuser said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he, too, was impressed by the number of details in the Johnson shack which corresponded with Dr. Kelley's impressions of the place of captivity. "I feel that the Johnson farm is the place where he was kept," the Sheriff said. "I was very much impressed with the way virtually everything Dr. Kelley observed as a prisoner blended in with what he saw out there. I got the impression that Dr. Kelley is a man who would expect exact verification of every detail before saying definitely that it was the same house. This could not be because some changes have been made around the place since the kidnaping, almost three years ago."

Dr. Kelley, accompanied by the Prosecutor, Sheriff Deuser, Deputy William and Newbold, and newspaper men, spent an hour and a half yesterday afternoon in going over every detail of the interior of the shack's attic and two first floor rooms, and checking his impressions of fleeting glimpses of the view to the west which he caught through a small and dirty window.

Meditatively whistling "One Fine Day," from "Madam Butterfly," the physician went about most of his inspection as though he were alone, often stopping to look from the windows, scrutinizing detail of walls and roof, and later helping deputies to rip from the nailed some pine boards which were nailed up last autumn to make the attic more nearly weather-tight. Afterwards he went thoroughly over the first floor, particularly the kitchen from which the stairs lead to the

3 ICEBERGS OFF CAPE COD

Sighted in Heavy Sea From Monomoy Point.

MONOMOY POINT, Chatham, Mass., Feb. 9.—Three icebergs drifted in a heavy sea past this long finger of sand that juts into the Atlantic south from Cape Cod today—a sight not seen here since the extraordinarily cold winter of 1917-18.

One of the bergs was described by Coast Guardsmen as about 75 feet long and it projected between 15 and 20 feet above the surface of the sea. The others were smaller.

PROPOSES $1215 BILL FOR NIGHT WATCHMAN'S FUNERAL

Nephew of Man Cared for as Pauper Wants Bopp's Charge Set Aside.

A motion to set aside the $1215 allowance for funeral expenses for

Max Levy, former night watchman at the St. Louis Country Club, was filed in Probate Court at Clayton yesterday by Marc Seguin, French Consul, representing the interests of Felix Levy, a nephew residing in Alma-Lorraine.

Seguin charges that the cost of the funeral was excessive and that the expenses were not authorized by anyone legally qualified. Levy had been cared for as a pauper by the county for 20 months before his death in January.

Louis Bopp, Kirkwood undertaker, said he provided the kind of funeral Levy had asked for 15 years ago. The allowance was made against a $1287 bank account discovered after Levy's death. The account was held in the name of
"Max Levy, as agent for Felix Levy." It was understood that Levy instructed bank officials to pay his funeral expenses and turn the residue of the estate over to the nephew.

ED MAYS VALUES OWN PROPERTIES
AT $1,529,795

President of Continental Life Lists Personal Holdings Minus Outstanding Debts.

Ed Mays, president of the Continental Life Insurance Co., testifying today in Circuit Judge Ryan's court, placed a value of $1,529,795 on various properties which he owns, against which he said there was indebtedness of $121,671, giving him "net worth" of $1,529,795.

He was on the witness stand for the tenth day in the trial of the suit brought by State Insurance Superintendent O'Malley to dissolve the insurance company on the grounds of insolvency and mismanagement.

Having testified at length in detail of the charges of insolvency, and having given his own view of the value of the company's assets,
Mays was asked by his attorney,
Theodore Rasmussen, to tell the Court about his personal assets.

Largest Item in List.
The largest item in his list of personal assets was 25,948 shares of stock of the Continental Securities & Holding Co., a holding corporation for his various other interests. He valued this stock at what it cost him, $1,293,180. He said the holding company owned more than 70,000 of the 100,000 shares of Continental Life stock, and a large interest in the Grand National Bank of which he is president.

He gave his personal holding of Grand National Stock as 28 shares, valued at $50 a share, or $1400. He listed 194 shares of the closed Wellston Trust Co., another of his enterprises, at $9700, also $50 a share.

Continental Life Holdings.
On 2194 shares of Continental Life stock which he owns he placed a value of $111,790, or $35 a share.

Other assets he described as follows:
Bills receivable (notes), $1982.
Merchandise (barrel staves), $15-000.

A judgment against the town of Leslie, Ark., $8000, on which annual payments are made.

An interest in a guaranty fund, $3000.

Advance to the Grand National Co., another of his enterprises, $23,000.

Stave mills at Leslie, Ark., $5000.
His former home at Leslie, $3000.
A farm of 200 acres near Leslie,
$10,500.

Other real estate at Leslie, $1000.
Store building at Leslie rented for $35 a month, $2000.

Mining Land in Arkansas.
Eighteen hundred acres of mining land in Searcy County, Ark., $10,000.
He said that during the war he operated nine mines on this property and sold 120 acres from the tract for $125,000.

A tract of 3996 acres of oil and timber land in San Jacinto County, Tex., from which he has sold $100-000 worth of timber, $10,000.

A timber tract of 1560 acres in Newton County, Ark., $7800; 3123 acres in Searcy County, Ark., $15-615; two tracts of 960 acres in Marion County, Ark., $4600; 529 acres in White County, Ark., $10,400;
1000 acres of farm land in Searcy
County, $8000; a house at Leslie, $800, and 20 acres there, $500.

The direct examination of Mays was completed this afternoon, and cross-examination was begun by Powell B. McHaney, attorney for Supt. O'Malley.

Tells of Bank's Assets.
Mays testified yesterday about the value of assets of the Grand National Bank, in which the insurance company has deposits of more than $600,000. The bank has been in the hands of a conservator since the national banking holiday last March.

A report of national bank examiners rating the balance sheet assets of the Grand National as to their liquidation value was presented by Mays. This report gave the total book assets as $3,374,732.

As of April 29, 1933, and classed them as follows: Liquid, $951,554; good, $714,201; good but slow, $1-101,601; doubtful, $219,970; loss, $387,444.

Mays declared that in view of subsequent developments some assets classed as doubtful should be considered good.

LAST WALL OF ONCE FAMOUS SALOON BEING TORN DOWN

Building at Franklin, Easton and Leffingwell Was Stopping Place in Civil War Days.

House" or "Old Shaban House," the saloon that stood in the triangle formed by the intersection of Franklin and Easton avenue with Leffingwell avenue, is being torn down and a filling station will be built on its site.

In the last century the place was well-known as a saloon where travelers, going out St. Charles Rock road, would stop for a drink while watering their horses in the public trough which stood in front.

Negroes living in the neighborhood recall stories told them by their parents of Civil War army officers who stopped there.

In recent years the widening of Easton avenue and remodeling for stores have caused all but one wall of the two-story brick structure to be torn down. It was recently bought by the Standard Oil Co.

BRYANT C. WINSTON FUNERAL TO BE IN SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Retired General Claims Attorney for Wabash Died Yesterday at Age of 77.
The funeral of Bryant C. Winston, general claims attorney for the Wabash Railroad until his retirement three years ago, will be held tomorrow afternoon at Springfield, Ill., his former home. Until tonight the body will be at the Lupton Mortuary, 4448 Olive street. Mr. Winston, who died of infirmities yesterday at his home, 5124 Maple avenue, after an illness of six months, was 77 years old and a member of the legal department of the railroad nearly 50 years. After admission to the bar in Springfield he worked in the offices of the road there and several years later came to St. Louis, where he became an assistant of the late Col. Wells H. Blodgett, solicitor-general of the line. Surviving is a son, Bryant F. Winston, with whom he resided. His wife died about 12 years ago.

Edward G. Bremer's Own Story of His Experiences In Hands of Kidnapers

Struck on Head 15 or 20 Times When Seized—His Condition Cuts Short Recital of Events.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 8.—Visibly upset and in a state of semi-collapse, Edward G. Bremer today related his experiences while kidnaped for $200,000 ransom. He sat in an easy chair in his home, while a physician waited in attendance.

As he began his story, the 37-year-old banker's voice broke, tears brimmed his eyes, and he brushed his forehead with his hand. Dr. H. T. Nippert, personal friend and physician, sat at his right and gripped Bremer's arm.

Following is Bremer's account:

"I left the baby at school I think about 8:30 a. m., the morning of Jan. 17 and driving away I drove to the corner of Goodrich and Lexington Avenue but stopped for the Arterial Highway. As I stopped the left door of the car was opened and a right arm was extended through the door with a gun pointed toward me. A gruff voice said: 'Don't move or I'll kill you.'"

"I quickly put the car in low gear to cross the street and looked up and saw a car squarely in front of my car. I had placed my left foot through the door and the foot reached the running board. By this time the man who had opened the left door apparently had got inside my car.

"He began striking me over the head and must have hit me 15 or 20 times. I tried to get out the right door and bumped into something there and it apparently was another man who also struck me over the head. My eyes became filled with blood and I was dazed. They pushed my head down under the dash board. Meanwhile my left foot was still outside the left front door for I had been thinking all the time that someone surely would see me as many people were taking their children to school by that route at that time of day.

"Finally, I don't know when, they pulled my leg into the car and we started out. We drove a while, I don't know how long or I don't know where, but it must have been 10 or 15 minutes later that they stopped the machine. They put goggles over my eyes and told me to get out. I had recovered my senses somewhat and distinctly remembered the commands to get out of the car, which I did. Then they placed me in another machine.

"I was placed in the back part of another car and I was told to lie down. At that time my watch was taken away, which they told me was for identification purposes.

CUNNINGHAM'S
419 N. SIXTH ST.
What is Your Spring SAILOR?

"Before anything was placed in front of me my head was covered so I could not see anyone placing anything in front of me.

"Some days rats were hard to get. I was allowed to sit until I could not sit any longer and then placed in bed.

"That routine kept on all the time I was in the room. The only time I walked was when they took me to the bathroom. After the first week the leg I had stretched out of the car to prevent them from closing the car door went out on me and I could not walk the entire week and they sort of pulled me into the bathroom.

"The morning they told me arrangements were made for my release they sat me in a chair and they started to shave me, to which I objected. The job lasted one hour, they said.

"They took me outside, placed me in the bottom of a car surrounded by gasoline cans and drove constantly except for one stop until dark. At this stop they took the cans out. Then they allowed me to sit on the seat, since it was after dark and they left two attendants with me.

"They told me they were going to find out whether or not the money was marked. I counted 15 but I heard their car stop so I did not remove the bandages. After the car started again I removed the bandages and I could just make out a light. I turned the right direction and started to walk. I walked around in circles first and then tried to walk straight so that no one would become suspicious by seeing me stagger.

"I got out of the kidnapers' car. I heard the car leave. I counted 15 but I heard their car stop so I did not remove the bandages. After the car started again I removed the bandages and I could just make out a light. I turned the right direction and started to walk. I walked around in circles first and then tried to walk straight so that no one would become suspicious by seeing me stagger.

"I walked six or eight blocks but I did not get to the bus depot. I then asked a man the way to the bus depot. I inquired about a bus and was told there was none to St. Paul that night. I told them that I must get back to St. Paul and the lady in the bus depot said she thought I could take a train to Owatonna and get a bus there.

"She called a taxi and I went to the depot where I bought a ticket to Owatonna. I got into a seat, pulled my hat over my eyes and arose when they called Owatonna.

"At Owatonna I got out and luckily no one saw me. I then got a cab and told him I wanted to go to the West End Commercial Club. We got there and I got out, turned around and walked up Seventh Street and went into the side entrance to the house."

Dr. Nippert interceded toward the close of the recital, feeling Bremer's pulse and asking him if he was all right. "I think you better cut the story short," suggested Dr. Nippert. "My head aches," said Bremer. Magee, wealthy contractor friend of the Bremers, received the first note from the gang, demanding $200,000 and warning against "bargaining with us." The note was left on his office doorstep a few hours after Bremer was seized. Magee, just prior to last Saturday, was to have gone to Des Moines with the $200,000, registered at a hotel named by the kidnapers and use a name supplied by the gang.

NEW JAPANESE ENVOY ARRIVES AND TALKS PEACE

Says His Country Does Not Want to Commit Suicide and He Wants to Drink Good Whisky.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Hiroshi Satō, Japan's new envoy to Washington, arrived today on the Berengaria to take over his post, which he described as "a great responsibility, but a cinch of a job."
The Ambassador assured a group of reporters who interviewed him as the ship was coming up the harbor that Japan does not want the Philippines. He also asserted that his Government stands for peace.
"We are not going to fight," he said. "Russia does not want to fight us and we don't want to fight them. If we have a war with Russia, it means war with all other nations, including the United States, and we do not want to commit suicide."
His interviewers mentioned as one of the outstanding questions between Japan and the U. S. S. R.

the disposition of the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria. There have been negotiations between the two nations looking toward the sale of Russia's interest in that road.
"The question is only one of price, and that can be smoothed out peacefully," the Ambassador said.
He declined to violate diplomatic decorum by discussing political matters before he presents his credentials at Washington. He said his chief diplomatic object at the moment was to "drink whisky with good Americans."

The envoy described himself as much heartened by efforts to give Japan an immigration quota in this country.

"We consider the present arrangement to be a stigma," he explained. "Only a question of 100 people would go a long way toward a good understanding."

FORMER ST. LOUIS WOMAN KILLED BY TRAIN IN ILLINOIS

EFFINGHAM, Ill., Feb. 9. — A Coroner's jury today returned a verdict of unavoidable accident in the death yesterday of Mrs. Edward Sparwasser of Peoria, who was fatally injured when a truck in which she was riding with her husband, was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train at a grade crossing east of the city.

The woman's husband who suffered a broken shoulder and internal injuries, will recover, hospital attendants said.

The body of Mrs. Sparwasser will be taken to St. Louis for burial, relatives announced. The woman formerly lived in St. Louis.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Babe Ruth announced yesterday that he would carry out the provisions of the Babe Ruth boys' club contest for an oil company. It was abandoned after the Federal Government objected that it violated the oil code.

J. L. Flood Estate $3,565,567.
By the Associated Press.
REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Feb. 9.—The bonanza king, James L. Flood, left an estate valued at $3,565,567 when he died in 1926. H. C. Tuckman, inheritance tax appraiser, reported to the Superior Court yesterday.

FIREMAN KILLED IN WRECK
13 Injured in Passenger Train Collision in Wisconsin.
RHINELANDER, Wis., Feb. 9.—Dan Jones, a railroad fireman, was reported killed and at least 12 persons, seven of them passengers, were injured, when two Northwestern Road passenger trains collided last night at a turntable track intersection near Monroe, 18 miles Southeast of here.
George Steber of Antigo, engineer, also was caught under the wreckage. Badly scalded by escaping steam and water, he lay for more than two hours in sub-zero weather, until rescued.

KANSAS FIRM OFFERS NATURAL GAS TO CITY Aldermen to Consider Proposal—Price Is Not Specified.
A proposal to furnish natural gas to the City of St. Louis, for all uses, from the Southwest Kansas fields, was presented today to the chairman of the Special Gas Committee of the Board of Aldermen by Kelt A. Wilson, representing the McKnab Oil and Gas Co. and the Phillips Petroleum Co.

A written proposal from W. M. McKnab of Winfield, Kan., president of the company, stated that the company would be able to deliver at the city gates more than 100,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas a day. He did not state a prospective price. Wilson said it would be between 24 and 40 cents a thousand cubic feet.
McKnab's letter said the company controlled 50,000 acres of proved natural gas land in the Hugoton field of Southwest Kansas. Wilson said the Phillips Petroleum Co. owned the controlling interest in the oil and gas company, and that Phillips pipe lines, now running to the East Side, could be used for delivery of gas. Wilson gave the committee his address as the law office of James A. Wascher, counsel of the Phillips Co. and Election Board chairman.
Alderman Michael Scott, chairman of the special Gas Committee, said he would call the committee together to consider the proposal.

WARNS AGAINST RAISING CITY COSTS AND CUTTING REVENUE
W. T. Nardin Tells Mayor That Two Pending Bills Must Be Reconciled.

Pending bills to reduce the city automobile license fees and to eliminate the 10 per cent reduction of pay of city employees are diametrically opposed to each other, William T. Nardin, board chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, has written Mayor Dickmann.

"Good government management requires that these two measures be reconciled or else the city's fine financial reputation will soon be gone," said Nardin. "Between these two bills, one increasing governmental costs and the other decreasing revenue, is a spread of around $1,000,000. To blindly reduce taxation to meet a popular demand, without planning a similar reduction in the expense of government, is questionable business."
Mayor Dickmann has vetoed the bill to reduce automobile fees. The Board of Aldermen may act today on the question of overriding the veto. The Mayor has not announced whether he would approve or veto the salary bill, but he has favored elimination of the pay reduction in the coming fiscal year.

REMOVING DEBRIS OF OLD WESTBOROUGH COUNTRY CLUB
Actual Construction of New Building Is Expected to Start Next Week.

Preparation for the erection of a new clubhouse for Westborough Country Club, Berry and Glendale roads, Webster Groves, has been started by the removal of the ruins of the old structure, destroyed by fire on Nov. 26, last year. Actual construction is expected to be started next week.
The building, which will cost about $40,000, will be a single story, U-shaped structure of white painted brick in early American architecture. It will contain a lounge, grill, taproom, locker rooms and kitchen. In the patio will be a large dance floor. The original swimming pool and tennis courts stand.

YOUTH, 19, GETS FIVE YEARS ON TWO ROBBERY CHARGES
Charles Kresaky Fleeds Guilty and Is Sent to Algon Reformatory.

Charles Kresaky, 19 years old, was sentenced to five years in Algon Reformatory on his plea of guilty to two charges of robbery. He admitted holding up Carl Ranney, employee of a tavern at 2600 Salisbury street, on Nov. 30, last, taking $5, and, on the day following, stealing an automobile in which he was arrested. He gave his address to police as 1527 North Seventeenth street.

CAT RESCUED FROM LEDGE
Removed From Church Perch, 40 Feet From Ground.

An adventurous cat was rescued by policemen yesterday from a window ledge at the Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor and Westminster avenues.

A woman, attracted by the cat's meowing, notified the police. Patrolmen Fred Beckman and William Eberle, sent to the scene, found the cat marooned 40 feet above ground, on the west side of the church. By climbing iron bars on windows, Patrolman Beckman reached the cat, which scampered away as soon as it set foot to the ground.

RECEIVERSHIP SUIT DISMISSED.
FORT WORTH, Tex., Feb. 9.—A receivership suit against the Fort Worth Properties Corporation, one of the Texas interests of Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was dismissed by Federal Judge James C. Wilson here yesterday on motion of attorneys for the plaintiff, Mrs. Selma Sternberg, Missouri widow. The court also dismissed a bankruptcy petition pending against the corporation.

UNIFORM LIQUOR ACT FOR COUNTY TOWNS APPROVED

League of Municipalities
Fixes License at $100 a Year for Package or Beer Sales.

A uniform ordinance for licensing and control of liquor sales in the incorporated suburbs was approved last night by the League of County Municipalities, meeting at Richmond Heights City Hall.

The league fixed the municipal license fee at $100 a year for sale of liquor by the package containing not less than eight ounces or for the sale of beer ranging in alcoholic content from 2.2 to 5 per cent. Such sales are legal throughout the State, subject to licensing.

The fee for the sale of hard liquor by the drink at retail was left blank, after several members had indicated the likelihood that few of the suburbs would permit such sales. Local option elections must be held in towns having between 500 and 20,000 population before retail sales by the drink may be permitted. University City, the only county town with a population exceeding 20,000, is preparing its own ordinance.

Indications are that the uniform ordinance will be generally adopted by the other suburbs, with some amendments to meet local conditions. City Attorney Trueblood of Webster Groves has prepared a form of ordinance for towns not contemplating the sale of hard liquor by the drink, which otherwise follows the league's uniform bill. The league measure, presented last night by City Attorney Hoester of Kirkwood, chairman of the Legislative Committee, was drawn by City Attorney Mohler of Clayton, executive secretary of the league. Details of it were published two weeks ago.

Local Option Elections.
Petitions for a local option election were placed in circulation in Maplewood yesterday. Similar petitions are being signed in Clayton. Ladue, home of three golf clubs and a large cafe, will hold an election March 2. Eleven other suburbs are eligible to hold such elections.

The original draft of the ordinance, on recommendation of the league's Taxation and Revenue Committee, called for a $25 license fee for package sales and $50 for 3.2-5 per cent beer. Hoester's committee last night recommended $50 for each. Mohler, Mayor La Tourette of Richmond Heights, league president, and others urged uniformity in fees among the towns and it was also suggested that the suburbs should conform to the St. Louis fee schedule when adopted.

Mayor Fels of Maplewood advocated a $250 fee for package sales, in the belief this would be the chief form of sales in the county. Trueblood thought $50 reasonable and said uniformity on this fee was especially desirable. He insisted the license should be a control rather than a revenue measure. By the time a vote was taken, representatives of a number of towns had left. The $50 fee was defeated, 5 to 4, the vote being by towns, and the $100 fee adopted by the reverse of this vote.

How the Vote Stood.
By the votes of the same towns, the $50 beer fee was defeated, 5 to 4. At first, the $100 fee lost by one vote; a $75 rate was killed, 6 to 3, and no vote was taken on a motion for $200. Mayor Oliver of Rock Hill said he would change his vote on $100. On reconsideration this carried, 7 to 2, with Clayton and Brentwood voting in the negative and Ferguson, Glendale, Kirkwood, Maplewood, Richmond Heights, Rock Hill and Webster Groves for it.

Attention was called to the fact that beer vendors, unlike those selling hard liquor by the package, are not required to have a $1500 stock of other goods and are not limited to certain types of stores. In response to a question, league officers said gasoline filling stations could not be licensed to sell package liquor, but it was reported some stations were vending liquor now. The probable total of Federal, State, county and town fees for package sales in the suburbs is $225 a year.

As adopted, the uniform ordinance provides that license applications must be sworn to and that the surety bond to guarantee that any place selling intoxicating liquor will be orderly and law-abiding shall be $2000. The type of surety is not specified, but the measure was amended to provide that the town may require additional sureties.

The question of a 250-foot limit between liquor-selling establishments was discussed. Fels urged this, to keep down the number of saloons. Mohler inquired about the effect on existing places of good reputation, close together, now selling liquor. This and the question of limiting the number of saloons in proportion to population were left to local determination. Discussion showed the intent of the ordinance was to limit liquor sales to ground floor or street-level establishments, thereby barring sales in rathskellers or upper floor hotel rooms. The ordinance in general follows closely provisions of the new State liquor control act.

Labor Board Orders New Vote at Houston (Tex.) Plant; Outside Union Lost First One.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The National Labor Board yesterday declared void an employee election held Dec. 1 at a Houston (Tex.) plant because the company involved, had, prior to the ballot, issued a statement which it was said virtually threatened discrimination against employees supporting an outside union.

The board ruled that a new election must be held. The first election resulted in 100% votes for the "employees' welfare organization" of the Hughes Tool Co. and 500 for the American Federation of Labor Machineists' Union. A Labor Board representative who supervised the vote, had permitted issuance of a statement before election by "each side." The company issued the Railroad Attorneys Ordered to File Brief by March 20 and RFC 20 Days After That.

Testimony was concluded today in the suit of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to set aside contracts under which the Missouri Pacific Railroad agreed in 1930 to buy certain terminal companies from the Van Sweringen interests controlling it for about $19,000,000 plus interest.

CAPT. AND MRS. JAN DRENT were instructed to file a brief by March 20 and attorneys for the RFC received 20 days after that.

John P. Murphy of Cleveland, counsel for the Van Sweringen interests, testified yesterday that an alleged $4,000,000 interest obligation, which the RFC contended the railroad was entitled to but did not receive under the contracts, had no existence in fact and was not an obligation of the North Kansas City terminal companies.

He described the RFC's search for the alleged obligation, which O. P. Van Sweringen had characterized as a "tempest in a teapot," as "concern over a detailed technicality."

Murphy said he was first informed authoritatively only several weeks ago that the interest was carried on the books of the North Kansas City companies as an open account, adding that book records did not necessarily indicate a legal obligation. It had been suggested by another witness that the book records were for income-tax purposes.

Assignments a Precaution. Max Truitt, local counsel for the RFC, exhibited assignments from the Armour-Swift interests of all open accounts and other indebtedness of the companies to Terminal Shares, Inc., a subsidiary of the Van Sweringen's Allegany Corporation, and asked Murphy if the open accounts were transferred to Missouri Pacific by Terminal Shares. Murphy said the assignments, which Van Sweringen had described as "stop orders," were made as a precaution to insure acquisition by Terminal Shares of all interests in the terminal companies and that Missouri Pacific got everything that Terminal Shares got.

"But if you were so careful to get everything from Armour-Swift, why weren't you just as careful to transfer everything to the Missouri Pacific?" Truitt asked. "I was," Murphy replied. "The assignments gave us nothing—they were just a sweep-up."

"Then you did a pointless thing?" "Yes, except there was a third party interest—that of the Burlington Railroad."

Murphy said he had not known of the book records of the interest account because the North Kansas City companies had been purchased on the warranty of a balance sheet furnished by the Armour-Swift interests. Hugh J. Curran, head of the North Kansas City companies, had testified that the balance sheet did not correspond fully to the book records, but did so taking into consideration the payment of certain notes.

Heated Legal Arguments. With lawyer questioning lawyer, the hearing developed frequent arguments over legal points and Federal Court Master Marion C. Early cautioned both from time to time to stick to issues of fact.

Sometimes the arguments grew so heated, with both talking at once, that the stenographer was unable to record the testimony. The stenographic record of the hearings, which have been held intermittently since last September, exceeds 2000 pages.

The RFC requested the hearings to determine whether the contracts between the Van Sweringens and the Missouri Pacific, which owes $23,000,000 to the RFC, should be ratified or repudiated. The controversy over the interest account developed after an examination of the books of the North Kansas City companies by William O. Mitchell, auditor for the Interstate Commerce Commission Bureau of Valuations.

WIDOW OF PILOT HAS SON

Father Was Killed in Crash in Michigan.
By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, Feb. 9. — Gifts from the pilots who flew the air mail with his father today awaited one-day-old Harold L. Neff Jr., son of the pilot who died of injuries and exposure following a crash in a Michigan swamp nearly five months ago.
The baby weighed nine pounds, five ounces, it was reported at the hospital, where his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Neff, was said to be in good condition. Pilot Neff disappeared last September after taking off in a mail plane from Chicago to Cleveland. A search by land, air and water failed to disclose a trace of him until three farm boys found him lying helpless with a broken leg and other injuries beside his wrecked ship, near Jackson, Mich. He had spent three days without aid, and died on Sept. 22.

LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE BUILT ON PLAZA

To Be Used for Meetings in Interest of Retaining 85c Tax Rate.

A "little red school house" has been erected on Memorial Plaza, at the northwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Market street, by the Citizens' School Tax Campaign Committee, to advertise the movement to retain the school-tax rate of 85 cents on the $100 for the next four years. The tax question will be submitted at a special election Feb. 20.
The schoolhouse, which will be used for meetings every afternoon during the campaign, will be opened at 4 p. m. next Monday, Lincoln's birthday. Thomas N. The Beaumont High School band will play. Dr. Gering will make the principal address, on the necessity of keeping the tax at the present level. Sidney Saestre, chairman of the Campaign Committee, will speak and Board of Education members will attend. At 4 p. m. daily next week, from Tuesday to Friday, a high school band will play at the schoolhouse, and a week from tomorrow the Shepard School band will play at noon.

SUGAR CONTRA

PROPOSED IN PRES

provides for Product ing Tax, with Cut to Prot

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress yesterday proposing a sugar control program:
"Steadily increasing sugar production in the continental United States and in insular regions has created a price and marketing situation prejudicial to virtually every interested farmer in many States threatened with losses for their beets and cane, and purchases of our goods have declined steadily as the shipping sugar to this country has increased."

"There is a school of thought which believes that sugar ought to be on the free list. This belief is based on the high cost of sugar to the American consuming public. The annual gross value of the sugar crop to American beet and cane growers is approximately $10,000,000. Those who believe in the free importation of sugar at the two cents a pound tariff levied to protect this sixty million dollar crop and that it costs consuming public every year more than 200 million dollars for this protection. I do not at this time recommend increasing sugar on the free list, but that we ought first to try a system of quotas with the tariff as a backstop, keeping down the price of sugar to consumers, of cane farming within our continental limits, and also to provide against further expansion of the sugar industry."

"Disorganized Production. Consumers have not benefited from the disorganized state of sugar production here and in the insular regions. Both the import tariff and cost of distribution which together account for the portion of the consumers' price for sugar, have remained relatively constant during the past three years. This situation clearly calls for immediate action. I believe that an increase in the return to our farmers, contribute to the economic rehabilitation of Cuba, provide quota quotas for the Philippines, Puerto Rico and at the same time in the Islands, and at the same time, higher prices to our consumers."

"The problem is difficult but it is solved if it is met squarely. Small temporary gains are sacrificed to ultimate general advantage. The objective may be attained only through amendment of existing legislation. The Agricultural Adjustment Act should be amended to make sugar beet and cane basic agricultural commodities. It then will be possible to collect a processing tax on the proceeds of which will be used to compensate farmers for their production to the quota of less than one-half cent pound would provide sufficient funds."

Consumer Compensation. "Consumers need not and should not bear this tax. It is all within the executive power to reduce the sugar tariff by an amount equal to the tax. In order to be certain that American consumers shall not bear an increased price for this tax, Congress should provide that the rate of the processing tax shall in no event exceed the amount which the tariff on sugar produced below the present rate of duty."

"By further amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act, authority to license refiners and processors to buy all sugar from the various processing areas only in the proportion which recent marketings of sugar bear to total United States consumption."

"The average marketings of sugar over the past three years provide a whole an equitable base, but a period should be fixed enough to allow slight adjustment between certain producing areas."

"The use of such a base will approximate the following preliminary and temporary quota:

Continental Florida.....	1,000,000
Hawaii.....	2,000,000
Puerto Rico.....	1,000,000
Philippine Islands.....	1,000,000
Cuba.....	1,000,000
Virgin Islands.....	1,000,000
Total.....	6,000,000

Application of Quotas. "The application of such quotas would immediately adjust supply to consumption, and provide a basis for reduction."

SUGAR CONTROL PROGRAM PROPOSED TO CONGRESS IN PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Provides for Production Quotas and Processing Tax, with Compensatory Tariff Cut to Protect Consumers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress yesterday proposing a sugar control program:

"Steadily increasing sugar production in the continental United States and in the insular regions has created a price and marketing situation prejudicial to virtually every one interested. Farmers in many areas are threatened with low prices for their beets and cane, and Cuban purchasers of our goods have dwindled steadily as their shipments of sugar to this country have declined.

"There is a school of thought which believes that sugar ought to be on the free list. This belief is based on the high cost of sugar to the American consuming public.

"The annual gross value of the sugar crop to American beet and cane growers is approximately $60,000,000. These who believe in the free importation of sugar say that the two cents a pound tariff levied to protect this sixty million dollar crop and that it costs our consuming public every year more than 200 million dollars to afford this protection.

"I do not at this time recommend placing sugar on the free list. I feel that we ought first to try out a system of quotas with the threefold object of keeping down the price of sugar to consumers, of providing for the retention of beet and cane farming within our continental limits, and also to provide against further expansion of this necessarily expensive industry.

"Disorganized Production. "Consumers have not benefited from the disorganized state of sugar production here and in the insular regions. Both the import tariff and cost of distribution, which together account for the major portion of the consumers' price for sugar, have remained relatively constant during the past three years.

"This situation clearly calls for remedial action. I believe that we can increase the returns to our own farmers, contribute to the economic rehabilitation of Cuba, provide adequate quotas for the Philippines, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and at the same time prevent higher prices to our own consumers.

"The problem is difficult but can be solved if it is met squarely and if small temporary gains are sacrificed to ultimate general advantage.

"The objective may be attained most readily through amendment of existing legislation. The Agricultural Adjustment Act should be amended to make sugar beets and sugar cane basic agricultural commodities. It then will be possible to collect a processing tax on sugar, the proceeds of which will be used to compensate farmers for holding their production to the quota level. A tax of less than one-half cent per pound would provide sufficient funds.

"Consumer Compensation. "Consumers need not and should not bear this tax. It is already within the executive power to reduce the sugar tariff by an amount equal to the tax. In order to make certain that American consumers shall not bear an increased price due to this tax, Congress should provide that the rate of the processing tax shall in no event exceed the amount by which the tariff on sugar is reduced below the present rate of import duty.

"By further amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the Secretary of Agriculture should be given authority to license refiners, importers and handlers to buy and sell sugar from the various producing areas only in the proportion which recent marketings of such areas bear to total United States consumption.

"The average marketings of the past three years provide on the whole an equitable base, but the base period should be flexible enough to allow slight adjustments as between certain producing areas.

"The use of such a base would allow approximately the following preliminary and temporary quotas:

Short tons.
Continental beets 1,450,000
Louisiana and Florida.... 260,000
Hawaii 935,000
Puerto Rico 821,000
Philippine Islands 1,037,000
Cuba 1,944,000
Virgin Islands 5,000
Total 6,452,000

"Application of Quotas. "The application of such quotas would immediately adjust market supplies to consumption, and would provide a basis for reduction of production to the needs of the United States market.

"Furthermore, in the negotiations for a new treaty between the United States and Cuba to replace the existing commercial convention, which negotiations are to be resumed immediately, favorable consideration will be given to an increase in the existing preferential on Cuban sugars, to an extent compatible with the joint interests of the two countries.

"In addition to action made possible by such legislative and treaty changes, the Secretary of Agriculture already has authority to enter into codes and marketing agreements with manufacturers which would permit savings in manufacturing and distributing costs. If any agreements or codes are entered into, they should be in such form as to assure that producers and consumers share in the resulting savings.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Senator Costigan (Dem.), Colorado, a former member of the Tariff Commission, said yesterday that as a result of his long experience with the "perplexing sugar problems,"

he was convinced "that President Roosevelt and the Department of Agriculture are inaugurating a precedent and program which, with due allowances for different views, is so balanced that it gives promise of sounder economic conditions in the United States and our island territories and possessions."

For the domestic industry, especially the growers, he said, the "saving anchor" of the plan was the inclusion of sugar cane and beets as basic commodities and broadening the President's powers to reduce the tariff on sugar.

An amendment to carry this out was proposed by Costigan some time ago. He said it would make possible a "program of moderate but better and more stable prices for sugar farmers without increased prices to American consumers—decidedly novel in the history of sugar tariffs and of agricultural relief."

After the President's sugar message was read in the House, Chairman Jones (Dem.), Texas, said hearing on a bill to be introduced to carry out the recommendations would be deferred until after hearing on the Bankhead cotton control legislation scheduled for next week.

Jones also said the sugar bill would not come up for consideration until after the measure making cattle a basic commodity under the AAA was through Congress. The cattle bill was passed by the House Monday and is pending in the Senate.

MIDWIFE IS INDICTED IN DEATH OF PATIENT

Mrs. Margaret Gunther, Accused of Manslaughter — Previous Grand Jury Did Not Act

An indictment charging Mrs. Margaret Gunther, midwife, with manslaughter in the death of Miss Louise Fish following an illegal operation, was voted by the grand jury yesterday.

A previous grand jury on Jan. 16 voted a no true bill but several members requested a subsequent hearing by another jury, according to Assistant Circuit Attorney McLaughlin. Mrs. Gunther, who is 32 years old and resides at 2632 Shenandoah avenue, had remained under $5000 bond since the first hearing.

The midwife was named in a homicide verdict by the Coroner's jury, following testimony of John D. Sanders, 22, that he took Miss Fish, 19, to the Gunther home for an operation on Dec. 30, for which he paid the midwife $15. He said he paid $5 more for a treatment for Miss Fish on Jan. 8. She died Jan. 11 at City Hospital of peritonitis.

According to Sanders, he and the young woman were known as husband and wife, although there had been no marriage. His home is at 7408 Michigan avenue. Miss Fish resided at 7316 Minnesota avenue.

RETAILERS CLOSE CONVENTION; INCREASED BUYING REPORTED

Business the Best It Has Been Since 1929, Officers of Association Say.

The convention of the American Retailers Association, which began Monday at Hotel Statler, closed last night with the third presentation of the spring fashion show in the ballroom of the hotel. More than 1500 retailers had registered for the meeting.

Officers of the association said more buying had been done during the convention than at any time since 1929. Sales managers of wholesale houses on Washington avenue reported substantial increases in sales. The next semi-annual meeting of the association will be held here in August.

ANOTHER 10-CENT INCREASE IN PRICE OF EAST SIDE COAL

Third Rise Since Nov. 1 Announced by St. Clair and Madison Operators.

An increase of 10 cents a ton in the price of coal, effective tomorrow, was announced yesterday by the St. Clair-Madison Coal Operators' Association. It is the third increase since Nov. 1, amounting to a total increase of 30 cents a ton, and has been approved by the NRA Code Authority.

All grades of coal are included. The new price of the most used grades, 5, 6 and 7 inch lump, is $2.65 a ton, and on 1½ and ¾ inch lump, $2.35. Clarence G. Stiel, president of the association, said the increase was approved to allow the operators a fair profit.

ESCAPED GIRL INMATES 'SOLD' TO DISORDERLY HOUSES

Illinois Roadhouse Keeper Confesses Part in Alleged Ring, Says He 'Bought' Five.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—With the Federal Government joined in the investigation, authorities said they had obtained the confession of a roadhouse keeper that he was implicated with an alleged ring which delivered escaped inmates of a girls' school of correction to disorderly houses.

Angelo Louisa of Coal City, Ill., admitted, Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin said, that two Negroes came to his roadhouse and suggested they could supply him with a number of white girls. He was taken to a Chicago hotel, Louisa said, and "bought" five young women of a group of 20 shown him. Louisa was arraigned with Marie "Rosie" Bianca of Rockford, Ill., both of whom were charged with pandering and held on $5000 bonds.

United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green said he was investigating charges that some of the girls were taken into other states in violation of the Mann Act. The victims of the ring, authorities charge, were girls from 17 to 20 years of age who escaped from the Illinois State Training School for Girls at Geneva, Ill.

American Held After $710 Is Found by Customs Inspectors.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Feb. 8.—The drawing of pictures in a frame filled with clay led to the arrest of Frank Heinie, 61 years old, of Hartford, Conn., charged with violating the new gold law.

Canadian customs inspectors at St. Lambert became suspicious of Heinie's continual drawing on the clay while he was a passenger on a Montreal train and turned him over to immigration inspectors. Officers scraped the clay from the frame and found $710 in gold coin, the said. Heinie was held for a hearing in Federal Court.

MACHINE GUNS, BOMBS SEIZED IN VIENNA RAIDS

Officials Announce Finding of Enough Explosives at Socialist Centers to Wreck Parts of City.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, Feb. 9.—Socialists wondered today whether Chancellor Dollfuss, who returned from Budapest today, would uphold the armed pressure against the Socialists which Vice-Chancellor Fey invoked during his two-day absence.

Socialists' strongholds are in the hands of steel-helmeted police. Dollfuss had been out of Vienna hardly 24 hours when police raided Socialist centers of the city.

The raids uncovered what an official communique said was "an unprecedented criminal plot of Bolshevik and Marxist elements," together with several thousand high-powered bombs and machine guns.

"There were enough bombs to destroy entire sections of the city," the statement said.

Many leaders of the outlawed Socialist Republican guards were arrested in connection with the alleged discoveries, including the commandant of police in Vienna. Several of the arrested leaders confessed, it was announced.

The government said the anti-Socialist action should not be interpreted as a move against the working class and advised workers not to permit themselves to be "lured into attempting anti-government demonstrations."

Strikes, it was emphasized, were made illegal by a recent decree.

TREASURY BARS 17 LAWYERS

Weeding Out Some of $1,000 Licensed to Appear Before It.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—While the Internal Revenue Bureau was disbarring 17 lawyers and suspending another from practice before the Treasury Department, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced yesterday that Charles C. Burlingham, former president of the New York City Bar Association, would come here next week to discuss methods of weeding out undesirable and raising the standard of lawyers who practice before the Treasury Department.

There are now $1,000 lawyers registered for practice before the Treasury Department. Numerous complaints have been received about lawyers claiming "influence" to "fix" tax cases. Those disbarred include Robert R. Bacchus, Springfield, Ill.; James C. Davis, Fort Smith, Ark., and Catherine G. Herley, Detroit.

ARKANSAS BOND RECEIVERSHIP VOID

U. S. Court of Appeals Holds Appointment in Drainage District Unnecessary.

In a decision handed down in St. Louis yesterday the United States Circuit Court of Appeals held that the appointment of receivers for an Arkansas drainage district because of default in payment of its bonds was illegal. The decision upheld the constitutional-ity of Act 46 of the Arkansas Legislature, enacted in 1933, prohibiting the appointment of receivers in case of such default.

The Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. of St. Louis, as trustee for the drainage district bonds, applied for appointment of receivers, alleging Act 46 was in violation of the constitutional guarantee against impairment of contracts, and a Federal District Court in Arkansas upheld this view.
The Court of Appeals said the holders of the bonds were not deprived of their remedy, that they still might enforce payment by mandamus to compel local officials to levy and collect taxes. Act 46, the Court said, was passed to remedy abuses that had grown up in the appointment of receivers and the payment of excessive fees to the receivers and their attorneys. The act being valid, the District Court had no right to appoint receivers, it said, and the decision of the lower court was reversed.

Announcement Will Be Made Today at Meeting—$2,131,617 of $3,700,000 Goal Pledged.

Announcement of plans for concluding the United Relief Campaign, which has been under way since Jan. 22, is to be made today at a report meeting of solicitors at Hotel Statler. Pledges of $2,131,617, or 57.6 per cent of the $3,700,000 goal, were announced today, an increase of $70,000 over yesterday.

Postoffice employees, numbering 2218, have pledged $13,218 to the campaign, an increase of 25 per cent over their contributions last year, although their pay has been cut 15 per cent and there are fewer employees.

This report was outstanding among those which have been received since the last meeting by Carl S. Lawton, chairman of the employe division. Other reports made public by Lawton, all exclusive of the gifts of executives or corporations, were:

Reconstruction Finance Corporation, 70 employees, $635.40; Columbia Terminals, 348 employees, $1515; Jefferson Hotel, 226 employees, $1235; Jewish Hospital, 195 employees, $1109; David G. Evans Coffee Co., 55 employees, $390; General Petroleum Co., 779 employees, $3313.

A partial list of national corporations which have contributed was made public by Robert L. Lund, chairman of a group in charge of soliciting them. About 150 corporations, Lund said, have refused to contribute, although efforts are still being made to obtain subscriptions from them. Those which have contributed include:

BAR OWNER SAYS HE KILLED RIVAL TO PROTECT SELF

Louis Colone on Stand Starts to Tell of Raid on His Collinsville Saloon, Halted by Court.

"I fired to protect myself. I feared he would shoot me," Louis Colone, Collinsville politician and former policeman, testified today at Edwardsville, in his trial on a murder charge as the result of the fatal shooting of Dan Dominic Maddelin, rival saloon owner, in Maddelin's home last summer.

Taking the stand after an array of character witnesses and Collinsville police, Colone related facts in his early career leading up to his appointment as a police officer in April, 1931, and his subsequent dismissal last June 23. He told how he became a co-proprietor of Tony Bonelli's Cafe on June 26 and started to tell about a raid on the combined restaurant and saloon the night of June 27.

Story of Raid Halted.
"I was machine-gunned" that night, I called police and they came," Colone testified, before the prosecution objected. Circuit Judge Riess ruled that Colone might not testify about the raid until after he had told of the shooting of Maddelin.

Explaining that there were eight persons, including five Collinsville policemen and two State highway patrolmen gathered at the saloon, Colone said he and the group went to Maddelin's home at Collinsville Park. The defendant previously had testified that he believed his Deputy Sheriff's commission was still in effect.

Two Went in House.
One State highway policeman was George Keulke, also indicted for murder, who obtained a severance in the case and is to be tried later.

"We all got out of the machine and walked up to the house, George Keulke and I in the lead," Colone testified. "Someone came to the back door and I said, 'Is that you, Snipe (a nickname for Maddelin)?' Maddelin said, 'Yes'."

"I said, 'I want to talk to you.' Keulke and I walked up on the porch. Maddelin unlocked the screen and we were admitted to the kitchen. The house was dark. Keulke told Maddelin to turn on the lights and said to him, 'You stay in the kitchen.' I said the same thing.

"George and I ventured into the other room (the living-room). George had a flashlight and a sawed-off shotgun. I had a pistol. "George flashed on the lights. He was in the lead and I was beside him. We ventured into the bedroom and there were no lights in the room. George flashed his flashlight around the room. I observed the bed. We got down on our knees and flashed the light under the bed.

"As we raised up, Snipe was in the right hand corner of the room—the southwest corner. He was standing near the door and window. I said, 'Why didn't you stay in the kitchen?' He didn't answer. "Get ready. We're going to take you to the station," I said. George threw the light around. I spied three guns on George's table. George said, 'What are you doing with all of these guns?'

"Snipe said, 'I'm in business. I handle a lot of money. I have to be protected.' Snipe started to reach for one of the guns. I said, 'Look out, George! I fired'."

After the shooting, the witness said, he picked up the weapons, took them out of the room and turned them over to Chief of Police Strong of Collinsville.

GETS LIFE TERM FOR SLAYING MAN WHO KILLED HIS BROTHER
Otis Jones Found Guilty of Clubbing Finis Lowery to Death.
Otis Jones, Negro, 2651 Lucas avenue, was found guilty of murder by a jury in Circuit Judge Baron's court yesterday, and his punishment was fixed at life imprisonment.

Jones was identified by witnesses as one of three men who clubbed Finis Lowery, 30-year-old Negro, to death in front of 2735 Lucas avenue on the night of Sept. 10, last. Guy Jones, brother of Otis, is awaiting trial in the case. The motive advanced by the State was the killing of Dan Jones, brother of Otis and Guy, in June, 1932, by Lowery. A coroner's jury did not hold Lowery. Jones made a general denial, presenting an alibi defense.

McLARAN ESTATE IN TRUST

The will of Percy B. McLaran, filed yesterday, leaves the largest portion of the estate in trust for his brother, Robert L. McLaran, a St. Louis attorney. Upon his death the trust is to be paid to Mrs. Ella M. Sawyer, a sister, and after her death to Dan T. McLaran, Cincinnati, Ohio.

U. S. STEEL HEAD ON LABOR

Industry Knows It Must Have Fair, Liberal Policy, He Says.
By the Associated Press.
DEL MONTE, Cal., Feb. 9.—The steel industry has entered wholeheartedly into support of national recovery, W. A. Irvin, president of the United States Steel Corporation, said in an address at the annual steel industries conference here yesterday. "We believe the President is making a splendid and courageous effort to bring about industrial recovery," Irvin said, "and we are giving him every co-operation within our power to that end."

"The experience in rational self-government under the steel code has given the leaders of the industry a fuller understanding of their social responsibility, which they fully recognize and willingly accept," Irvin continued. "The industry knows that it must have a fair and liberal labor policy. It knows that to increase prices unreasonably to a point which would result in unreasonable profits would defeat the very purpose of the National Recovery Act."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 9.—Thomas Alton Tully, son of Jim Tully, the writer, was convicted by a jury yesterday of attempting to attack Mrs. Violet Robey, Montebello (Cal.) housewife. Sentence will be pronounced next Tuesday. The penalty is one to five years' imprisonment.

ICKES HIBES AT MILLS' LAMENT FOR THE PAST

"Good Old Days of Government for Rich Are Gone Forever," He Hopes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Secretary of Interior Ickes last night took issue with Ogden L. Mills for raising his "faint voice" to charge that "whatever the administration was doing was wrong."

The "faint voice" came last week, Ickes said, from the Hoover secretary of the Treasury as he "wended his lugubrious way to Topeka, Kan., to tell the free-thinking, hard-hitting farmers of the Middle West that it were far better for them to starve by strict constitutional methods than to live by a liberalized interpretation of that fundamental document."

Ickes spoke at a dinner of the Hursey Associates, Inc. His speech was broadcast.

"With black band on arm and hat at half-mast he mourned the glories of the departed past," said Ickes of Mills' criticism of the Roosevelt policies. "Initiative was stricken with palsy. Liberty was dead."

"Gone, Let Us Hope, Forever."

"Those days are gone, let us hope, forever. I believe we are at the dawn of a new era when the average man, woman and child in the United States will have an opportunity for a happier and richer life."

Ickes said that "a bloodless revolution" occurred in the election of Nov. 8, 1932, and in his judgment "we have turned our backs definitely and finally upon an era that history will appraise as at once sordid, ruthless and glorious."

"Reduced to its simplest terms," Ickes continued, "the social revolution of which I have spoken consisted in turning out from the seats of power the representatives of wealth and privilege and exploiting ruthlessness and substituting for them a man whose purpose it is to make this country of ours a better place to live in for the average man and woman."

"It is not the desire of the President, as I understand him, to pull anyone down. It is a passion with him to build people up. But if it is necessary in his process of building up to ward off with his shield the mailed fist of the marauder he will do it."

President's "Native Caution." Ickes said the social program of the administration would not cause a strain on the nation's economic system, but would encourage greater consumption of goods and a general stimulation of commercial life.

The President, he said, "always teams up with his imagination and courage a native and inherited caution." He asserted that the administration does not "sit about indulging in day dreams" but when an idea has been properly tested "sets about giving it effect."

He praised the administration for not becoming blind to the necessity for long-range planning. He said one of the most significant developments of the Public Works program was the national planning board which was organized and is functioning.

FORMER FEDERAL OFFICIALS CALLED IN DETROIT INQUIRY

Sensors to Ask A. A. Ballantine and F. G. Awalt About Treasury's Efforts to Avert Bank Crash.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Two men high in the Hoover Administration were called today to testify before the Senate Banking Committee about events connected with the declaration of the Michigan Bank holiday last February. They are Arthur A. Ballantine, under-secretary of the Treasury under Ogden L. Mills, and F. G. Awalt, acting comptroller of the currency in the latter days of the Hoover Administration. The only other witness the committee plans to hear is Eugene W. Stevens, Federal Reserve agent in Chicago. All the witnesses will be asked about the discussions of steps considered to avert the banking crash.

Examiner Assails Methods.
The committee yesterday heard Alfred P. Leyburn, chief National Bank examiner, denounce policies followed by the First National Bank of Detroit, one of the largest units of the Detroit Bankers' Co.

Leyburn, who testified he was transferred from the Seventh Federal Reserve District in Chicago to the Fourth District at Cleveland because of “politics” assailed the leadership of Wilson W. Mills, president of the Detroit Banking Co. He said Mills increased his own salary from $40,000 to $50,000 a year in January, 1933, and “enjoyed the distinction of being the only person in the United States to do that.”

He referred to the so-called “one-man grand jury” that investigated the Detroit collapse last fall as “the left-handed grand jury.”

Charging that the governing committee formed to operate the bank “was absolutely dominated by Mills,” the examiner said John Ballantine and Mark Wilson resigned as president and vice-president respectively because they “couldn't stay in the bank and keep their self respect.”

“They couldn't get anything constructive by the committee, he said. Recalling testimony of other witnesses that Ballantine stepped out of the bank “to keep his self respect,” Leyburn said “and that's just exactly what he did.”

Denounces Bad Loans.
Leyburn said “the bad loans of the bank have been called rotten. They weren't rotten—they were putrid.”

He declared the minutes of the meetings of the governing committee were incomplete, asserting they failed to show $40,000,000 in losses, and to state that he had told them that any dividends they declared would “be on their own responsibility.”

Senator Couzens of Michigan asked how Leyburn accounted for the fact that the members of the governing committee increased their deposits in the period shortly before the crash.

“They thought that because the bank was so large the Government wouldn't let it cease to operate,” Leyburn replied.

Testifying again, as he did in the guardian group inquiry, about an order to all chief national bank examiners in 1931 to exercise leniency in their examinations, Leyburn said he had been told “not to rock the boat and not to let anything happen.”

Denies Political Pressure.
“Do you think there was any political pressure?” Chairman Fletcher inquired. “No, I don't think so,” the witness said.

“Would you call it political pressure if the order came from the Secretary of the Treasury or from the President of the United States?” Couzens asked, recalling Leyburn's previous testimony that he was “not guessing” when he said the Comptroller of the Currency was yielding to “the high command” when he issued the order. “No, I don't think I would,” the examiner said.

Leyburn remarked that numerous reports had been circulated in Detroit about him, and added that “if the cap fits let them wear it—it would fit some more of them if they'd cut the corners off.”

He testified the bank was insolvent to the extent of $4,000,000 at the time it was closed, and charged that the report he had wiped out several millions of dollars of Catholic loans had been started by Mills “so the radio priest would get on my neck.”

WIFE SUES EARLE MECKS, EX-BANKER, FOR DIVORCE

Former Head of West St. Louis Trust Co. Accused of General Indignities.

Suit for divorce was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Mabel Meeks, 6016 Clayton avenue, against Earle Meeks, former president of the West St. Louis Trust Co., 4101 Eastern avenue, which closed in January, 1933. She alleges general indignities.

The two were married at Jefferson City Dec. 29, 1923, and separated Sept. 1, 1933. Meeks resides at the Claymore Hotel, Clayton.

VETO OF CITY AUTO LICENSE CUT STANDS

Aldermen Fail to Repass It, Lacking 4 Votes of Required Majority.

Mayor Dickmann's veto of the bill reducing the city automobile license fees stood today when the Board of Aldermen failed to pass it over his veto. The board voted 16 to 12 to override the veto, but 20 votes are necessary to do that.

Fees would have been reduced from 80 cents to $1.50, depending on the horsepower ratings, and the loss in revenue to the city was estimated at $100,000 a year.

A bill which would increase the salaries of Police Judges Finnegan and Vest from $3000 a year to $4000, was amended at the request of Alderman Collins to fix the salaries at the former rate of $3000. This required that the bill be sent back to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for its approval.

The Ways and Means Committee, at the suggestion of City Counselor Hay, retained the bill calling for an election May 15 on a proposal to issue $18,300,000 of public works bonds. Hay said the Mayor was considering including in the construction program two community centers for Negroes which would cost $450,000.

A soccer team of the Board of Aldermen, it was announced, would play a team from the Water Department Monday afternoon at Sportsman's Park.

NEGRO WHO KILLED ANOTHER IN ST. LOUIS IS PAROLED

Harvey Partlow Was Serving Life Term; Fredericktown Man Also Released.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9.—Harvey Partlow, St. Louis Negro, serving a life term in the State penitentiary here for the first degree murder of Greene Frazier, another Negro, was granted a parole today by Acting Gov. Frank G. Harris. He was received at the prison May 15, 1922.

He was paroled to Capt. Frederick Foubister, St. Louis, and plans to return to Mississippi to take care of his aged mother. He killed Frazier when he attempted to shoot Fannie Johnson, Negro woman.

Another parole was granted to Clint Lee, Fredericktown, who served 21 months of a six-year sentence on a manslaughter charge in connection with the killing of Sylvester Johnson who, Lee claimed was trying to kill his father, Craddock Lee. Lee was 16 years old at the time of the offense.

$235,000,000 REVENUE BILL IS INTRODUCED IN THE HOUSE

Leaders Plan to Bar Amendments Except Those Proposed by Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The new $235,000,000 revenue bill was introduced today by Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The committee was called to meet Monday to vote finally on reporting the measure to the House for consideration beginning Wednesday.

House Democratic leaders decided definitely to bring it in under a rule barring all except amendments proposed by the committee.

Chairman Doughton is to go before the Rules Committee Tuesday to ask for the drastic procedure. There is some opposition in the committee to the rule proposed.

Representative Lewis (Dem), Maryland, wants the measure opened up for amendments on the floor and has served notice that he will oppose the rule before the Rules Committee.

Suit for annulment was filed today by Richard L. Walker, 4654 Gravois avenue, who stated he married his first cousin, Beulah Copeland, in St. Louis two years ago contrary to Missouri statutes.

John Unger, attorney for Walker, said the pair did not know their marriage was in violation of the law until last April, when they separated. Mrs. Walker is now living with her mother at Fairfield, Ia. Walker is production manager for the Walker American Corporation, 2665 Delmar boulevard.

SENATE DEFEATS $2,500,000,000 RELIEF PROPOSAL

Then Passes Bill Allotting $950,000,000 for CWA and Emergency Aid to States.

GRADUAL REDUCTION OF FORCE PLANNED

Clause in Measure Provides That Names of Directors
Be Submitted for Confirmation.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The Senate passed the administration bill appropriating $950,000,000 additional for civil works and relief grants to the states last night after administration forces had defeated overwhelmingly Republican independent efforts to increase the total. Of the amount voted $450,000,000 is for the Civil Works Administration.

The bill now goes to conference with the House.
The final vote was reached without a roll call after Senator Cutting (Rep.), of New Mexico, had lost 57 to 10, an amendment to increase the fund to $2,500,000,000, of which $2,000,000,000 would be for civil works, and La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, had been defeated, 52 to 14, in an effort to increase the total of $1,500,000,000.

Confirmation of Directors.
McCarren (Dem.), of Nevada, won by 42 to 19 an amendment requiring all state relief and Civil Works directors to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate and obtained a promise from McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, in charge of the bill, that the Senate conferees would come back for another vote before giving in on the proposal in conference.

McCarren said he offered the amendment in view of the wide publicity given charges of "scandal and fraud" in connection with administration of the two relief projects.
La Follette opposed the amendment on the ground that some of the relief grants to states have not been matched by state funds and he did not believe presidential appointees should be permitted to disburse state money.

McKellar said Harry L. Hopkins, Civil Works and Relief Administrator, had told the Appropriations Committee the administration intended to reduce gradually the Civil Works force and hoped to send the entire 4,000,000 workers back to farms and industry by early summer.

Seven Democrats, two Republicans and the Farmer-Labor Senator voted for the $2,500,000,000 amendment. The Democrats were Black, Bone, Costigan, Dill, Long, McCarren and Wheeler. Republicans: Cutting and La Follette. Farmer-Labor: Shipstead.

The same "aye" lineup was found on the vote for the $1,500,000,000 amendment, with these additions: Hatch, Murphy, Pope and Russell, all Democrats.

Senator Long (Dem.), of Louisiana lost an amendment to earmark $500,000,000 of the fund for relief of public schools in the states.
Opposition to Amendment.
Administration leaders opposed the Cutting and La Follette amendments on the ground that Federal relief officials had testified the $500,000,000 would meet the situation until early summer when it was expected industry and farm revival and expansion of public works would absorb many of the civil works employees.

Cutting and La Follette along with Wagner (Dem.), New York, challenged estimates by Harry L. Hopkins, the Federal Relief and Civil Works Administrator, as to the number that could be taken back into industry through normal pick-up.

Cutting said the civil works project should not be dropped May 1 as proposed. He said this was the only emergency step taken by the administration thus far that had succeeded, although he did not blame anyone for failure of the others.

La Follette said unless the Cutting amendment boosting the civil works fund to two billion dollars were approved, "we will be confronted by a most serious recession in business and economic recovery." "Civil works," he said, "has proved that money pumped out at the bottom produces velocity and forces spending."

He said the program had "practically arrested retail bankruptcy" in some centers and had been the "chief prop in supporting the level of business activity during the winter months."

A trip through 12 states recently had disclosed to him, he added, that it had not been for civil works, this winter would have been the "worst" in the depression.
Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, said he was unable to understand the plea for more money when Hopkins said $950,000,000 would be sufficient.

Republican Pamphlet Demands Speedy Liquidation of CWA; Charges Graft, Waste of Funds

Entitled "Scandals," Booklet Alleges Attempt Is Being Made to Build Political Machine for 1934.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Charges of graft, corruption and gross waste of public funds have been made against the Civil Works program by the Republican National Committee in a pamphlet entitled "CWA Scandals." It calls for a speedy end of the emergency work-giving organization.

The pamphlet says:
"The CWA should be liquidated at the earliest possible moment. There should be no temporizing with those who demand its continuance. By the admission of its own officials, it is saturated with corruption, and so honeycombed with political favoritism that there is no hope of its being renovated."

"It was in the newspaper interview which Mr. Hopkins (Harry L. Hopkins, Civil Works Administrator), had with the newspaper correspondents on Nov. 22 that the opinion was expressed that: 'If the CWA is continued, the politicians will find a way to make it an almost 100 per cent patronage affair.'"

$10,000,000 a Day Expense.
The pamphlet says that if those on CWA payrolls can not find employment in private industry or in the Public Works program they should be returned to relief rolls. It adds:

"If this administration cannot successfully shoulder the responsibility of conducting an organization dedicated to square dealing among the nation's needy, involving the expenditure of over $10,000,000 a day, without the graft and discrimination which marks that organization (the Civil Works Administration), then it should disavow the responsibility altogether and pass the burden of the needy back to local and state agencies which handled the situation in the first place."

The pamphlet attacks the Roosevelt administration policies, economic and financial, as an impediment to business recovery. It says: "Because of the continuation throughout the winter of the administration's financial policies and its harassment of legitimate business and industry, normal conditions have not returned."

"If the administration will adopt a sane financial policy, if it will stop experiment with economic theories which run contrary to all business experience and common sense, if it will disavow its mind of the belief that the individual or the corporation which has a dollar is the natural enemy of the one which has not, and get rid of its advisers who continually promulgate that theory, there will be no need of a continuation of the CWA because in that event private employment will soon take up the normal slack in the field of labor."

Charges Political Motives.
"But whether it does this or not, it is unthinkable that the CWA be continued beyond the shortest time necessary to bring its affairs to an orderly close. To do so would be publicly to proclaim what is now being freely stated privately, namely, that the administration intends to use the CWA as a political machine to control the elections."

If this should be done, it would furnish the greatest example of criminal venality in history—an attempt to nullify the voice of a free electorate by a corrupt, paternalistic organization.
In opening the attack on the Civil Works Administration, the pamphlet declares:

"The scandals which develop and permeate the CWA are inherent in that organization. The purpose for which it was set up, the manner in which it was set up and the method of its operation made the nation-wide scandals inevitable."

"(1) It was an 'over night' set up, thrown together by a patently administration to cover up, and divert public attention from the utter failure of its recovery program to relieve unemployment and increase mass purchasing power. No organization of such dimensions, reaching into every county and municipality in the United States, flung together to serve as a political makeshift, could be expected to function either efficiently or honestly."

"(2) It was a political set up, composed of and directed—in the main—by henchmen of the Democratic administration selected because of their instant availability."

"(3) It was organized solely to spend enormous sums of money. It was organized to spend the money in a hurry, as a gift or dole, rather than as a fair compensation for worth-while services. The emphasis was placed on putting 4,000,000 individuals on a Federal payroll at once. What they did was of minor importance. The Washington headquarters directed that the formality of letting work by contract be abandoned because that method would consume too much time and the object of the CWA was speed, and still more speed, in connecting 4,000,000 individuals with a public payroll. Other safeguards which are observed in the simplest of business transactions were disregarded in response to the insistent

It Made Rebate.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The House Military Affairs Committee was told today that one contractor made such a big profit on his army business that he agreed to sell 50 additional airplanes to the Army for a dollar apiece. The contractor was the Consolidated Aircraft Co. of Buffalo, N. Y., the committee heard.

Brigadier-General H. Conger Pratt, in charge of airplane procurement for the Army, said that an army audit in 1927 showed Consolidated had made a total profit of 46.1 per cent, or $675,000, on its Army contracts.
When that was discovered, Pratt added, an officer of the company was called into conference with the Chief of the Air Corps and agreed to sell the Government 50 additional planes at a cost of $1 each.
"The base contract price on that type of airplane was $6000, so the contractor returned to the Government in the neighborhood of $300,000," Pratt added.

Woodring on Stand.
Testimony that private contractors since 1926 averaged 19.8 per cent profit on Army airplane business was given by Harry H. Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War.

Since 1926, Woodring added, army airplane purchases on which the 19.8 per cent profit was made totaled "about $61,000,000."

In the last three and a half years, he continued, the contracts total had been $24,600,000 "and the average profit brought down to about 8.9 per cent."

Discussing a $7,500,000 allocation of Public Works funds for army airplane purchases, Woodring said, "There have been many airplane men in my office saying they would like to see production contracts on a more competitive basis."

Consequently, Woodring continued, "I insisted, after hours of conference, that those interested get together to see if we could advertise for the planes on a competitive basis."

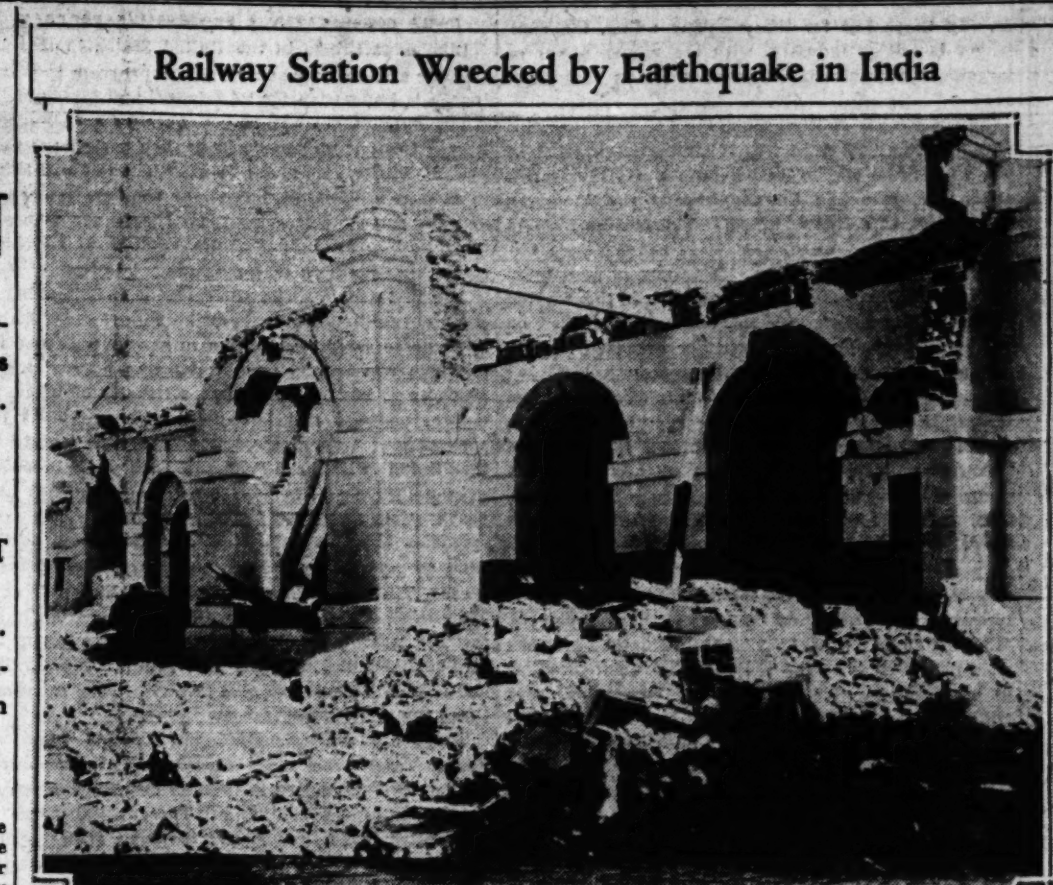

"We've advertised," Woodring said, "and those bids are in, but have not been evaluated and the result will not be known for a couple of weeks."

Details of Audit.
A Government audit showing that private contractors had made profits as high as 90 per cent on army airplane orders has been submitted to members of Congress.

The 90 per cent profit was credited to the Boeing Airplane Co. for its 1932 contract work. From 1928 through eight months of 1933, the auditors figured Boeing's total army airplane sales were $4,529,208, and its average profit 32 per cent.

The House Military Affairs Committee will investigate these figures.

DISASTROUS STORM IN NORTHWEST EUROPE

Several Killed, Many Hurt in Germany and Scandinavia —Shipping Tied Up.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Feb. 9.—Several persons were killed and many injured last night by high winds which swept Germany and Scandinavia.

It was one of Northwest Europe's worst storms in years.
Three were known to have been killed in addition to an undetermined number of sailors drowned when the fishing vessel, Condor, sank with all hands on board in the estuary of the Weser River.
Baltic and North Sea shipping was driven to harbor by the storm. Widespread damage was caused along the seashore. Hamburg, Bremen and Stettin all reported heavy damage from the high winds. At least one person was killed by a falling smokestack at Stettin.

Many Berlin motorists were injured by debris hurled into the streets. Nearly every house in a suburban colony for the unemployed near Berlin was unroofed.

After midnight the rain storm changed to snow, driving sleet over nearly all of North Germany. Several cities reported wind velocity of 63 miles an hour.

From Copenhagen came word of heavy snow and hail, with the streets blocked by fallen trees and smokestacks. Two persons were killed by a falling stack at Malmoe, Sweden.

"In the event citizens want this political information," Barrios added, "they must attend the meetings at which speeches are made or buy newspapers."

FOUR BALKAN NATIONS SIGN NON-AGGRESSION TREATY

By the Associated Press.
ATHENS, Feb. 9.—The Balkan non-aggression pact was signed formally today by representatives of Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

The absence of envoys from Bulgaria and Albania cast a shadow over the ceremony in the historic audience chamber of the Greek Academy, but it was said Bulgaria might accept later. Signatory nations agree among other things to guarantee one another's frontiers for five years.

After the ceremony, the peace-makers reviewed a military parade. White-kilted, pom-pom-slipped Greek hillmen, who once formed the royal guard, were the most colorful figures in the procession.

Balkan amity will expand tonight under the influence of an American orchestra at a big ball. True-man Kirk, a former United States sailor, is the band leader. He pleaded another engagement, but Premier Tsaldis personally commanded the performance.

5 EX-PREMIERS JOIN CABINET OF DOUMERGUE

Herriot and Tardieu Designated as Vice-Premiers in Newly Completed Ministry.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Feb. 9.—Gaston Doumergue, 71-year-old Premier-designate and former President of France, this afternoon named a Cabinet of experienced veterans.

Five former Premiers are included in the ministry which Doumergue presented later in the day to President Lebrun for the chief executive's approval.

Former Premiers Andre Tardieu and Edouard Herriot agreed to serve as Ministers of State without portfolio. Each will have the title of Vice-Premier.

The Cabinet is slightly Leftist or advanced Liberal in complexion, with only the Communists and the Socialist faction headed by Deputy Leon Blum left out.

Even before Doumergue had completed his list of Cabinet Ministers, Herriot resigned as president of the Radical Socialist group and announced a tentative list. With a few exceptions, Herriot's prediction proved correct.

The Cabinet, as named officially by Doumergue, follows:
Premier, Gaston Doumergue; Ministers of State without portfolio, former Premiers Andre Tardieu and Edouard Herriot; Foreign Affairs, former Premier Louis Barthou; War, Marshal Henri Petain; Navy, Francois Pietri; Air, Gen. Denais; Commerce, Lucien Lamoureux; Interior, former Premier Albert Sarraut; Finance, Germain Martin; Justice, Henry Cheron; Health and Hygiene, Louis Marin; Education, Aime Berthod; Colonies, former Premier Pierre Laval; Public Works, Etienne Flandin; Labor, Adrien Marquet; Agriculture, Henri Queille; Communications, Andre Malraux; Pensions, Andre Rivollet; Merchant Marine, William Bertrand.

The Neo-Socialists are represented on the Cabinet by Marquet. Doumergue summoned his appointees to a meeting at the Foreign Office and, as he led them in a body to the Elysee Palace declared: "From the Premier to the

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. — Business dominating the NRA or is the NRA choking business? That question today is perhaps the most important asked of the administration's recovery program. It is being asked by Ogden Mills, who claims that business recovery is being held up by NRA restrictions. It is being asked on Capitol Hill where Senators Borah, Nye and other progressive claim that the Blue Eagle files along a narrow course started solely by Big Business.

As a result, a critical lens is being applied to Gen. Johnson's administration. There are the men on the firing line; men basically responsible for the writing of codes governing the entire industry of the United States. Gen. Johnson approves the codes in the end. So who does the President. But their attention can be concentrated only on a few of the major industries.

By and large, the man who presides at code hearings declines to make concessions to be given Labor, the safeguards to be given the consumer, the privileges granted to industry, and in the end writes the code, holds the key to the NRA.

This man is the administrator. There are a total of 115 senior and junior administrators in the NRA, all in charge of different divisions, groupings of industry.

And the most accurate answer to the question of whether Business dominates the NRA or the NRA dominates Business is a scrutiny of the experience and background of these administrators. Here is a cross-section of the record:

Division No. 1
OIL, automobiles, iron, steel, shipping, the biggest industries of the nation, are grouped in Division No. 1. Its administrator, K. M. Simpson, an old friend of Johnson's, a metallurgical engineer of extensive experience, a man of real professional ability, but a poor executive—timid, uncertain, easily misled, seemingly awed by the names of the big business world.

K. J. Ammerman, deputy administrator in charge of the automobile code, came directly from that industry as New Jersey sales manager of Packard, and as one-time assistant to the president of the American Car & Foundry Motor Co., a subsidiary of ex-Secretary of War Clegg's great company.

G. H. Shields III, deputy administrator of the shipping code, is a Boston blue-blooded, who views the industrial problem from the rare heights of the Harvard Club and an apprenticeship in the Navy, service of Scudder, Stevens & Clark, large Boston investment firm.

Leighton H. Peebles, deputy administrator handling the utilities code, has a background of several years with the mighty General Electric to assist him in this extremely technical job.

A. L. Kress, deputy administrator of rubber, views his problem from the vantage point of many years on the payroll of the United States Rubber Co.

W. A. Janssen, latest deputy administrator to be put in charge of the long and bitterly contested aluminum code, written by Andrew W. Mellon's monopolistic Aluminum Co. of America, came to his task as a metallurgical engineer with the Allegheny Iron Co. of Pittsburgh and the Vanadium Alloys Corporation.

GERTRUDE STEIN OPERA 'MAKES IT WELL FISH'

Or Words to That Effect—'Four Saints in Three Acts' Given at Hartford.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 9. — "Four Saints in Three Acts," one of the strangest musical spectacles ever produced on any stage, had its world premiere last night in the auditorium of the new Avery Memorial Museum.

The music was written by Virgil Thomson to the libretto of Gertrude Stein. Both are American writers who have lived for years in Paris. The scenery for this modern opera is made of cellophane of various shades and patterns. Almost continuous change of lighting takes the place of the usual changes in sets. The cast is made up entirely of Negroes, who were chosen because the composer believes their dialect and singing clearer than those of whites.

30 Saints, Not 4 Acts, Not 3. The opera, despite its title, proved to be in four acts and a prologue. Instead of four Saints there were more than 30 Saints in the cast. The story was not intelligible except to those who were initiated into the mysteries of the style of Gertrude Stein. Here is how the libretto begins:

To know to know to love her so. Four saints prepare for saints. It makes it, well fish. Four saints prepare for saints it makes it well fish it makes it well fish prepare for saints. And so forth.

Late in the prologue the whole cast suddenly breaks out into: "My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty, of Thee I Sing." Just what this had to do with the dramatic situation was hard to say, but it did not matter much. The whole prologue, as near as the uninitiated spectator could make out, was a sort of Sunday school picnic.

Hymn-Like, Then Jazz. The hymn-like was frequently interlarded with a more devotional atmosphere which appeared often throughout the opera. The religious mood was intensified by the orchestra, which had a piano accompaniment to simulate the harmonium.

The chorus and cast periodically broke out into hymn-like music, and with equal regularity suddenly changed to joyous, almost jazzy, tunes.

The principal characters are St. Ignatius and St. Teresa. The latter is played simultaneously by two members of the cast, as if to unfold a dual personality. There are two other important characters called "Comere" and "Comere," whose principal purpose is to help tell the story, something after the fashion of a Greek chorus. Along with the chorus they sing and alternately speak not only the words of the play, but also the stage directions.

The extraordinary effect is enhanced by curious gestures of the players, unusual postures, and internationally stodgy dances.

Audience in Quarry. The audience, which included many distinguished musicians and socially distinguished persons, took the performance partly in jest, partly seriously. Entering into the spirit of the opera, it watched and listened intently, occasionally bursting into applause in the middle of a scene, at other times laughing outright at some mock seriousness.

All the characters on the stage, however, played their roles with the utmost seriousness.

The composer, Thomson, has long been a friend of Miss Stein as well as an admirer of her curious works. It was at his request that the libretto was written. The opera was completed several years ago. Its revolutionary style postponed production until its cause was recently espoused by a Hartford organization called "The Friends and Enemies of Modern Music," headed by A. Everett Austin Jr., who sponsored the production.

After playing for five performances in three days to sold-out houses in Hartford, the opera is scheduled to go to New York City.

Foresight of the Fathers

An Address by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler at Columbia University.

OT one single question which confronts the world today in trying to build our new international society, not failed to be considered and discussed by the fathers of this Republic as they were trying to build a federal government for the 13 states. They were using a laboratory experiment. They were using with a microscope on 3,000,000 people scattered along the Atlantic seaboard, and Benjamin Franklin and George Washington and Alexander Hamilton and James Madison; we out the words states and colonies and in the word nations and you have the man-like, constructive and forward-looking discussion of every great problem faces the world today.

They understood that a state could not be permitted to build up walls and obstacles to trade, and they understood that no society states would last unless each state had independence and freedom of action within the world nations and you have the man-like, constructive and forward-looking discussion of every great problem faces the world today.

BOY VIOLINIST MENUHIN OFFERS TO PLAY AT BENEFIT

Musicalian, in St. Louis, Writes Letter to New York Philharmonic Director.

Yehudi Menuhin, young violin virtuoso who is this week's soloist at the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra concerts, yesterday made public a letter in which he offered to play at a benefit performance of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, to further its campaign for a $500,000 guarantee fund.

In the letter, addressed to Arturo Toscanini, conductor of the New York Philharmonic, the 17-year-old violinist said: "To set a good example to those who are rich, richer than we musicians are, I am donating one of my violins to the orchestra and I, donate our services free. The sum of $500,000 should be immediately secured."

The guarantee campaign, started recently, seeks to provide for the orchestra for the next three years.

THE CHILD OR THE DOLLAR? The Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

HE big manufacturers are scared pink about the proposed child labor amendment in the United States Constitution. The amendment was drafted and adopted by Congress as a direct result of the decisions of the United States Supreme Court declaring the first and second child laws unconstitutional. Four out of five Justices, in passing on the first law, held that Congress already possessed the power to control child labor through its authority over interstate commerce, and one opinion on the second law held that Congress possessed this power through its taxing authority.

Suggestions for Valentine Luncheons and Dinners

The coincidence of Ash Wednesday and St. Valentine's day may mean some of the usual festivities for the latter, but no doubt there will be many celebrations in a smaller way.

There are many stories about the origin of St. Valentine's day. Here is one which says the day had its beginning long before the Christian era. It was the custom of the ancient Romans to celebrate the feast of the Lupercalia in the middle of February. This they did by conducting a marriage lottery. The names of certain marriageable young women were put into a "love urn," and each young man, blindfolded, drew out the name of the maiden destined to be his sweetheart.

But the early Christian fathers didn't approve of such a slipshod method of choosing wives. They tried to do away with the custom by substituting the names of saints in the urn, with the men paying tribute at the shrine of the saint whose name they drew. The day set aside for this ceremony was Feb. 14, and was called St. Valentine's day.

The new name stuck, but the marriage lotteries continued, despite the efforts of the church. The custom was in great favor with the people. The mates chosen in this way came to be called "Valentines."

Whatever the origin, it is truly a day dedicated to sweethearts. And Cupids and hearts are favored for decoration and embellishments for cakes and ice creams.

For an unbaked pie crust, roll enough vanilla wafers to make three-quarters cup of crumbs. Cut other wafers in heart shapes to stand around the edge of the pie plate. Cover the bottom of plate with crumbs and fill in spaces between wafers. Pour in the filling. Sprinkle with remaining chopped nuts and chill. To carry on the Valentine spirit, squeeze stiffly whipped cream out of a pastry tube. "I love you" is easiest; but with a little practice you can squeeze out "To My Valentine," if you prefer a less definite declaration!

Mince-meat Heart Tarts.
Roll rich pie crust dough into a sheet and cut into heart shaped pieces with a bridge cookie cutter. If that isn't handy, cut a heart shaped pattern from cardboard, lay it on the pie crust dough and cut out the heart with a sharp knife. Bake the pie crust hearts 10 minutes or until brown in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit). Just before serving, spread with cooled mince meat and reheat in the oven. Garnish with a generous dab of currant jelly—in the shape of an arrow. Hard sauce or American cheese may be used instead for garnishing.

Canape Hearts.
Canape hearts are made of rusks cut out with a heart-shaped cookie cutter. The rusks are cleaned and even without crumbling. Spread the hearts with your favorite mixture—goose-liver, parsley butter, or one of the fish pastes. Then cut out hearts of the same size from large pieces of pimiento. Lay them on top of the rusk hearts, and garnish with onion-flavored cream cheese.

Cupid's Heart Ice Cream.
Cupid's heart ice cream is a brick of vanilla ice cream adorned with red gelatin molded in the form of a heart. If you let a little of the gelatin spill down the side of the ice cream, the heart will look truly love-lorn. A mixture of raspberry ice and vanilla ice cream is another dessert idea—very simple and an unusual combination of flavors.

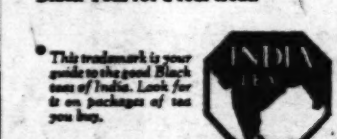

Heart Sandwiches.
Cut very thin slices of whole wheat and white bread, spread with cheese or other sandwich mixtures, put a whole wheat slice between two white ones in club sandwich style.

Valentine Salad.
Drain a small can of sliced beets saving the juice. Chop the beets fine and mix with one teaspoon egan with a small dish ALL-BRAN for breakfast, and to say, I never need any physic at all now. How other poor sufferers from constipation could be persuaded to try Mrs. Sarah Haynes, 138 Cood Terrace, Rochester, N. Y.

ts show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN as "bulk" and vitamin B regular habits. Also iron food.

"bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much that is leafy vegetables. It is safer than taking medicines! Two tablespoonfuls BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal relieved this way, see you this delicious ready-to-eat from your grocer. In the red-green package. Made in Battle Creek.

CHILDREN'S LUNCHES PROBLEM TO MOTHERS

Noonday Home Menus, Simple but Nutritious.

Many a mother finds it a little hard to know just what to give the youngsters for lunch when he rushes home from school with only a little money to eat. The food must be simple but nutritious, and tempting enough to induce the youngster to eat it. Here are 10 menus, varied so that won't get tired of his noonday meal:

- 1. Cream of mixed vegetable soup, cheese sandwiches, milk
- 2. Spanish rice, hard rolls, cocoa made with milk
- 3. Whole wheat chowder, peanut butter sandwiches, apple sauce
- 4. Creamed hard-cooked eggs, cabbage and pineapple salad, bread and butter
- 5. Tomato soup, minced ham sandwiches, milk
- 6. Tomato rabbit on crackers, raw apple
- 7. Creamed carrots and peas, Graham crackers, bananas
- 8. Vegetable soup, cottage cheese with raisins, bread and butter
- 9. Meat and vegetable stew, jelly sandwiches
- 10. Fish chowder, whole wheat bread and butter, canned sliced peaches

CHAFING DISH MEALS
With the return of informal entertaining, chafing dishes and their relatives are being resurrected from the attic and top shelves. The happy hour is cooking at the table, a durable occasion for both host and guest. Try it on the family time, too, and see if they don't vote hearty approval. Cooking at the table is perhaps a bit novel, and in that very lies much of its charm. The table set with the dishes of tempting ingredients becomes a sort of stage on which the show is played. It is a perfect opportunity to use the prettiest dishes, especially the odd bowl that Aunt Sarah gave you, or the handsome platter picked up at a sale because its price was simply irresistible, but never quite harmonized with the dinner set. If the platter is large enough, all the ingredients, most of them, may be colorfully arranged on it, being removed from with a large spoon and fork as needed.

50 YEARS A MARTYR TO CONSTIPATION

But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Welcome Relief

Read this splendid letter from Mrs. Haynes:

"For 50 years I have been a martyr to constipation. Have tried every remedy under the sun.

"One day I read an account of one who had been relieved by ALL-BRAN, but I thought 'What is the use of me trying anything when all else had failed?'

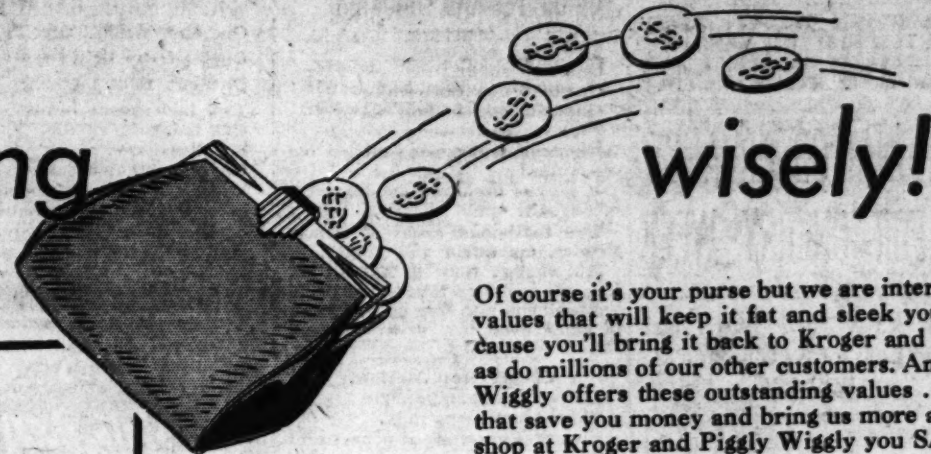

"A while after, I read it again. At that time I thought I would try it, would do no harm anyway.

"I began with a small dish of ALL-BRAN for breakfast, and I am glad to say, I never need to use any physic at all now. How I feel after poor sufferings from constipation could be persuaded to try ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal, not relieved this way, see your doctor.

"This 'bulk' in ALL-BRAN is much better than leafy vegetables. It's much safer than taking patent medicines! Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal, not relieved this way, see your doctor.

DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

We are asked for a "good devil's food cake." We know of none better than the following:

Two cups sifted cake flour.
Two and three-quarters teaspoons combination baking powder.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
Two-thirds cup butter or other shortening.
One and one-half cups sugar.
Three eggs, well beaten.
Three squares unsweetened chocolate, melted.
Three-quarters cup milk.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well; then chocolate and beat until smooth. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 35 minutes, or until done. Spread frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake.

COCONUT BREAD PUDDING

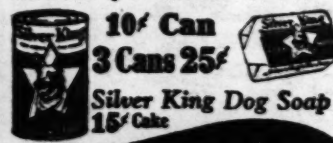

One-half cup sugar.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Two eggs, slightly beaten.
Two cups coconut.
Two tablespoons melted butter.
One-half teaspoon vanilla, or one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg.
One cup stale bread, cut into one-half inch cubes.
Combine sugar, salt and eggs. Add milk gradually, then coconut, butter and vanilla or nutmeg. Place bread in greased baking dish. Pour milk and egg mixture over it. Place dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven 45 to 50 minutes, or until pudding is firm. Serve with cream or sauce.

NATIONAL OBSERVANCE FOR CHERRY WEEK

Coincides With Patriotic Celebrations of Washington's Birthday.

The birthday of George Washington coincides with the 1934 celebration of National Cherry week, from Feb. 15 to 22. As the cherry tree is probably the best known legend about our first President, a cherry dessert is the ideal compliment to a Washington's birthday party. Here are new recipes for cherry puddings that can be turned out in a jiffy and have the additional recommendation of being failure proof. Cherry mint marlow takes a little longer but is delicious, too.

Cherry Delight.
One and one-third cups sweetened condensed milk.
Three-fourths cup cherry juice.
One cup vanilla wafer crumbs.
Cherries for garnishing.

Thoroughly blend sweetened condensed milk and cherry juice. Stir until mixture thickens. Place in six sherbet glasses alternate layers of the cherry mixture and vanilla wafer crumbs, leaving a topping of crumbs. Push three whole wafers into the mixture around the sides of each sherbet. Chill. Serves six. The short-cut trick is that in the sweetened condensed milk, the sugar and milk have been boiled down to a rich, creamy mixture which, when mixed with lemon juice, will always blend into smooth custard consistency.

Cherry Spanish Cream.
One and one-half cups sweetened condensed milk.
One-half cup cold water.
Three-fourths cup sweetened condensed milk.
Two cups hot water.
Three-fourths cup chopped Maraschino cherries.
Three eggs separated.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon almond extract.
One-fourth cup syrup from cherries.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Thoroughly blend sweetened condensed milk and hot water and bring to scalding point in a double boiler. Add softened gelatin to this and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Pour slowly over egg yolks, blending thoroughly. Return to a double boiler and cook until thickened. Add stiffly beaten egg whites, Maraschino syrup and chill. When mixture begins to thicken, add cherries. Pour into individual molds. When firm, serve with a garnish of whipped cream and whole cherries.

Caramelized Sugar.
To caramelize sugar, heat it in a frying pan or heavy saucepan, stirring constantly, until it melts and becomes golden brown in color.

BUTTERMILK COOKIES

Two cups sorghum.
One cup sugar.
One-half cup buttermilk.
One-half cup boiling water.
Two teaspoons soda in water.
Eighteen tablespoons melted butter or lard.
If lard is used add one-third teaspoon salt.
Two teaspoons each of cloves, allspice, cinnamon and ginger.
Mix enough flour to roll for cutting out cookies with required stiffness and roll into thin cookies. Bake in quick oven.

Cherry Mint Marlow.
Fifteen marshmallows.
Three-fourths cup milk.
Three ounces essence of peppermint.
Three ounces creme de menthe cherries.
One-half pint whipping cream.
Steam marshmallows and milk together until mixture is smooth and add juice and finely chopped cherries. Add peppermint essence. Cool and when slightly stiffened carefully combine with stiffly beaten cream. The appearance of this marlow is enhanced if a small amount of green vegetable coloring is added to the foundation mixture while hot. Pour into trays and freeze without stirring.

Eggs Benedictine.
Split and toast English muffins. Sauce circular pieces of cold boiled ham. Place ham on the toasted muffin halves. Place a poached egg on top of each. Cover with Hollandaise sauce.

HOME-MADE CARAMELS

One and one-half cups Sugar.
One-half cup light corn syrup.
One cup milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Marshmallows.
One-fourth cup cream.
Mix all ingredients together, except vanilla and marshmallows, and cook over a low flame, stirring constantly, until the mixture reaches a temperature of 245 degrees Fahrenheit, or until a little tested in cold water will have the consistency of a soft, chewy caramel. Remove from fire and add vanilla. Cover bottom of greased pan with caramel mixture, sprinkle with marshmallows, cut in quarters and cover with another layer of caramel. When cold, turn the block of caramel out of the pan in order to cut it more evenly. Cut in squares.

MINCEMEAT UPSIDEDOWN CAKE

One-third cup butter.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Two eggs.
One-half cup milk.
One and one-half cups cake flour.
One-fourth teaspoonful salt.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
Cream butter, add the sugar gradually and cream well. Add one egg at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition until light and fluffy.

OLD JUDGE
DRY ROASTED
COFFEE
Settles the Question

 DRY-ROASTING
Green coffee contains a large percentage of moisture. Roasting produces a costly shrinkage in weight. Therefore, it is a common practice among roasters of ordinary coffee to replace this shrinkage by adding water during the last stage of the roasting process. But, because the vapor thus formed combines with and carries off much of the "coffee" and other aromatic substances on which the true coffee flavor depends, no water is added during the roasting of Old Judge Coffee.

VEGETABLES BIG AID WITH LENTEN MENUS

Famous Chef Gives Hotel Recipes for Florida New Potatoes.

Vegetable may be an important factor in planning Lenten meals, if women will stop and consider what a wide range of vegetables is found in our markets and shops—many at very reasonable prices. Vegetable au gratin with rice or cheese and crumbs may serve as the main dish on meatless days. Creamed vegetables are usually well liked, and thick vegetable soup cuts down other foods in the luncheon or dinner menu.

New cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and celery are cheap this week and may well be served to give vegetable variety to meals. New Florida potatoes, the Red Bliss Triumph, are in and are lower priced than usually at this time. Maxine, famous chef of Miami Biltmore Hotel, gives the following suggestions for new Bliss Triumph potatoes:

Potatoes "Anna."
Take medium-sized potatoes, peel very carefully and slice very thin. Season with salt and pepper. Line with melted butter a very hot casserole. Place the sliced potatoes in the casserole in a medallion design, building up row on row until the casserole is filled. Add two ounces of melted butter and put casserole, with a tight-fitting cover, into a very hot oven. Place live coals in it to permit potatoes to cook top and bottom simultaneously. Cooking time is 40 minutes. Remove casserole from oven, unmold on a platter and serve. The potatoes should be golden brown over the entire surface and sides.

Potato Balls With Parsley.
With a vegetable cutter, scoop out balls from raw potatoes, having two cups. Cook in boiling salted water until tender but not soft. Drain and add two tablespoons each butter and minced parsley, and a dash of pepper and paprika.

Creamed Potatoes.
Two cups raw potato cubes, 1 teaspoon salt. Cook barely covered by hot water until tender but not soft. Drain off half the water. Add enough rich milk or cream to cover potatoes. Heat thoroughly. Add two tablespoons butter blended with one tablespoon flour. Cook several minutes, stirring occasionally. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Liver and Tomato Sauce.
Cut calf's liver into one and one-half inch squares. Roll in flour to which salt and pepper have been added; fry in deep hot fat to cover—about one and one-half minutes. Drain, garnish with strips or curls of bacon and cut lemon. Serve with tomato sauce.

THE TWINS SPRING A SURPRISE ON WASHDAY

No More Spotted, Streaked Clothes —since they started using Oxydol!

READ MRS. WILEY'S LETTER

"When my daughter said she thought she would give that new Oxydol a try, I prophesied a line full of spotted and streaked clothes. The directions for using it sounded too good to be true. But I had to change my mind! The work was so light and the clothes so white that we decided Oxydol was our soap for good!"

Mrs. Helen Wiley, Camden, S. C.

YOU can see for yourself that this new laundry soap discovery has changed all Mrs. Wiley's past ideas about fast washing and white clothes. Why don't you try it? No matter what soap is your present favorite, try this latest scientific discovery.

OXYDOL is made by the same people who make famous Ivory. It's the latest, improved laundry soap invention of Procter & Gamble experts. And does these things no other soap can do or has ever done.

Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine, thus saves hours of labor. Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter, by Tintometer test, than other soaps. Whiter in one washing than any other soap can get them in two to four washings! Yet it cannot fade or injure either color or fabric. Special elements are so blended in it as to protect colors against fading. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. And it's so kind to hands that you're amazed at its power to clean clothes!

It works without back-breaking rubbing. For it works by dissolving dirt. OXYDOL soaks dirt out in 15 minutes. So you never have to scrub and boil clothes clean.

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water
The new, improved OXYDOL will make thick "soft water suds" in any water, hard or soft. Without added "softener" or washing preparations. This is why:

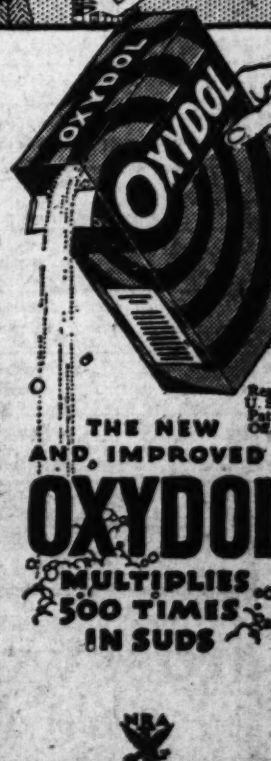

It is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold. Water in this district, for example, has been tested for "hardness" by expert chemists.

And the OXYDOL you get here contains just the right amount of softener to fit it. You can see the results in the suds. OXYDOL multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Which means at least twice as much "soap action" as from old-style soaps. We knew it had to be better to win women from older ways. So we made it better, and now we urge you to try the new, improved OXYDOL in your own home. We promise you'll save hours of labor. You'll get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter, without scrubbing or boiling.

You'll have no more fading colors; no "soap streaks" after ironing; no soap-bitten, red hands. And OXYDOL is economical. By actual test, a regular 25c package will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap or 2 to 3 times as much flakes!

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. 19-5, Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL today from your own grocer.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9. — Selling waves swept through the stock market today reducing quoted values 1 to 5 or more points at the extreme. The reaction was attributed to nervousness in advance of publication of the administration's new proposals for the control of speculation. Many losses were pared in a late rally, but the close was heavy. Transfers approximated 3,250,000 shares.

Trading was rather quiet until late afternoon when the volume picked up substantially and the ticker tape dropped behind floor transactions. International dollar rates were narrow. Grains yielded a cent or more a bushel, but cotton moved up to new high levels since 1930, before easing a bit. Rubber was firm, but silver and sugar eased. Some bonds were under pressure.

Final prices showed losses of 1 to around 3 points in most American Telephone, U. S. Steel, United Aircraft, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, General Motors, du Pont, New York Central, Westinghouse, American Can, U. S. Smelting, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Case, Union Pacific, Goodyear, American Water Works, Liggett & Myers and Public Service of New Jersey.

Wheat ended with declines of 1/4 to 1/2 cents a bushel. Corn was off 1/4 to 1/2 cents and sagged 1/4 to 1/2 cents. Rye and barley lost 1/4 to 1/2 cents. Cotton was advanced 1/4 of a cent an ounce to 44 1/2 cents.

The British pound, at mid-afternoon, was up 1/4 cent to $3.01 1/2 and French francs were slightly easier at 64 1/2 cents. Dutch guilders firmed, off 1/4 of a cent at 65 1/2 cents. Belgian francs were off 1/4 of a cent at 22 1/2 cents and Swiss francs were up 1/4 of a cent at 31 1/2 cents. Canadian dollars were unchanged.

Neither the sugar nor sugar stocks paid much attention to an increase in the price of the staple. Bonds of some of the sugar plantations, however, rallied. Interpretations of the Government's new sugar program were varied, but the consensus was that the plan was bullish for Cuban producers.

The lack of enthusiasm for aircraft issues was attributed partly to rumors from Washington that Postmaster-General Fisher might recommend cancellation of all mail contracts and call for open bids.

Further expansion in retail buying was reported by Dun & Bradstreet. Sales for the month were said to be averaging between 20 and 60 per cent above those of the same period last year.

Car loadings for the week ended Feb. 9 were up 2,532 over the preceding week, but the gain was about seasonal. The total of 64,068 cars like 1933 week of 62,039 over the 1932 under the same 1932 period.

Weekly Financial Statistics.
Just how effective a deterrent to the outflow of the boost of the French bank's discount rate from 3 to 2 per cent will be as a matter of mixed opinion in local banking quarters. It was reported that considerable amounts of the metal had been moved from Paris to London. How much of this gold was intended was not disclosed.

Finest for Chaining Girl to Cot
By the Associated Press.
BENTONVILLE, Ark., Feb. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Logston yesterday were convicted of child neglect after 13-year-old Lola Logston had related a story of how she had been chained to a cot and sometimes forced to go hungry and thirsty. They were fined $50 each.

Would Tax Bachelors.
DENVER, Colo.—Like Mussolini, James D. Parrott, Denver City Attorney and Republican candidate for Governor of Colorado in 1932, believes that unmarried men should be taxed. He recently cut the salary of Gerald McAuliffe, one of his assistants, $100 per year. McAuliffe is unmarried and therefore, Parrott declared, he should be able to live on less than a married man.

MORE RELIEF FUNDS URGED BY WAGNER

Senator Says $950,000,000
Won't Last Until Congress
Meets Again.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Declaring that the proposed appropriation of $950,000,000 for Federal relief is a "great deal less than is dictated by the minimum requirements of sound public policy," Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, yesterday told the Senate that not more than 4,000,000 persons were likely to be re-employed between now and the beginning of 1935.

Wagner, who is the Senate expert on relief and unemployment legislation, said that if "these savings predictions are justified" there would be 6,000,000 workers dependent on public relief or public employment at the end of the year, compared with the 10,000,000 today. He explained that with local relief efforts holding their own, 5,000,000 of the 6,000,000 persons unemployed at the end of the year would be compelled to look to the Federal Government for relief. These 5,000,000 persons, he said, constitute with their families 25,000,000 persons, or one-fifth of the total population.

Wagner quoted the words of Relief Administrator Hopkins that the persons now "on relief" included some of "the finest people in America."

Commenting on the unemployment situation, which he has made his special study since going to the Senate, Wagner said that in March, 1933, there were 15,000,000 persons without jobs.

"No one could claim," he continued, "that more than 4,000,000 of these have been directed since then into the normal channels of industry, commerce and agriculture. About 1,000,000 men are engaged in the public works program. This means that today there are at least 10,000,000 workers who must be cared for either by charity or by work financed by public funds."

Absorption of Workers.
Private industry, Wagner insisted, could not be expected to absorb workers during the next eight months as fast as it had absorbed them during the last eight months.

"A large part of re-employment has been due to the shortening of hours," Wagner explained. "Obviously, there are limits to the amount of relief that can be afforded by this device." In conclusion, Wagner said that at the beginning of 1933 the monthly volume of wages was $1,666,000,000 less than in 1929, and that due to various relief measures and the operation of the recovery act, the monthly wage volume had risen by almost $600,000,000.

"This leaves a gap of over $1,000,000,000 a month which has to be filled before we can begin to feel safe," he declared.

last of the Ministers, everyone will do his duty."

It is the first time in many years that a Cabinet has been formed including men who are not members of Parliament.

Doumerque was encouraged by a message from Raymond Poincare, war-time President of France, who is now at the Riviera. Said Poincare: "I congratulate you heartily for accepting the post you alone can fill. My affectionate good wishes."

14,000 Police Ready.
Company after company of provincial forces camped in and around public buildings, and 14,000 police prepared for a fight.

Soldiers were moved toward the workers' suburbs in the eastern part of the city, in anticipation of Communist demonstrations. Troops were stationed in the Grand Palais on the Champs Elysees and the big Palais des Sports operated by the American promoter, Jeff Dickson. These two buildings were turned into barracks. Many public courtyards were filled with bivouacking soldiers.

Troops From Provinces.
Officials refused to disclose military information, but the insignia seen on uniforms showed that many of the soldiers had been brought in from the provinces.

The principal fear was that unemployed miners from the Lens region might attempt to march on Paris.

The Place Republique was sanded to give footing to horses in case a cavalry charge should be necessary. Suspected pedestrians were searched by police for concealed weapons.

Tonight's manifestations were called against a Government "of parties and Fascism."

Adding to the seriousness of this immediate situation was the 24-hour general strike called by the Federation of Labor for Monday. One of the most serious aspects of the strike was seen in the announcement that 800,000 French civil servants would join the walk-out. The civil servants, angered by pay cuts, include employees of transportation, communication, water, electricity and gas public service units. Today the school teachers' union joined the strike movement with an order for the closing of all schools Monday.

Replacement of Strikers.
Detachments of naval mechanics were ordered from Brest and other ports to replace the Paris strikers. Strong units of infantry, cavalry and artillery from suburban garrisons were brought in to re-enforce regular troops in the event of possible violence.

"Democracy is threatened dangerously," said a Labor Federation manifesto.

Doumerque's demand that he be given the right to rule by decree, with Parliament adjourned, if necessary, was not finding sympathy in all quarters.
One of the more than 200 injured in Wednesday night's rioting died today. This brought the total dead in Paris' two days of disturbances to 13. Many still lay in hospitals. Police and mounted guards were kept on duty where the rioting raged Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Groups of street hoodlums were seen here and there, but they were orderly.

Officials said that the shooting this week probably would have been avoided had they had tear gas to disperse the crowds, as they had planned. The Government had asked the War Ministry for gas bombs, but was told none were available.
Authorities, in justifying the firing by guards on the crowd storming the Seine bridgehead at the Place de la Concorde, said they feared deputies would be lynched and the Chamber of Deputies' Building would be fired.

$400 Ring Recovered.
When Mrs. Tillie Ostrow, 5762 Terry avenue, told police of the disappearance of a $400 ring from a hiding place in the gas oven at her home, officers questioned a Negro girl formerly employed in the apartment. The girl said she had taken the ring, supposing it was of negligible value. It was found in a cupboard at her home.

The bodies of Genevieve Bernot, 8 years old and Richard Bernot, 12 months old, were found in the ashes of their home. KROGER CHAIN EMPLOYEES VOTE ON CALLING STRIKE

Action Follows Refusal by Company of Demands by Union Workers.

A strike vote is being cast by clerks and managers of Kroger stores in St. Louis and St. Louis County, who are members of the Grocery, Fruit, Vegetable and Provision Employees' Union. The decision to take the vote was made at a meeting last night, following rejection by the Kroger Co. of a contract for increased wages, shorter hours and a seniority rule for clerks.
If the employees vote to strike a proposal will be submitted to Kroger officials for a $18 minimum and $25 maximum weekly wage for providing the maximum wage for those with three years' service. The maximum salary of clerks is now $19 a week. The wage sought for managers is $35 a week.
The union is asking for regulation of hours as provided under the NIRA code, with a 48-hour week for employees getting less than $35 a week. Union officials say 600 clerks and managers are union members, and about 125 others have not signed up. The vote will be counted Tuesday and announced that night at a meeting.

DO YOU KNOW?

Why the Ladies' Home Journal has gained the largest audience of school, college, sub-deb and business girls, aged 12 to 22?

Why 61,459 of these girls wrote personal letters to one of the JOURNAL editors in a single month?

Why readers asked for nearly a million booklets on home making, decoration, architecture, gardening, fashions, entertainment, beauty, etc., in 1933?

Read the March issue! See for yourself why it is so useful and enjoyable every month to so many interesting people.

The glorious story of a young lawyer with a New England conscience and the already engaged daughter of his wealthy employer. A motor crash—false accusation vs. duty and devotion—how far should a man go to save the woman he loves? ... A fast-moving novel in three installments, beginning this month.

A MATTER OF PRECEDENCE—by Clarence Budington Kelland. A rollicking story of the blue-stocking president of a conservative women's college—a platinum-haired duchess whose ability to "wriggle the shoulder" proved of more practical value to her "select young ladies" than all of their social prestige.

WHAT ARE THE WOMEN UP TO?—by Alice Roosevelt Longworth. Why haven't there been more women in Congress since they won suffrage? Here's an intimate, personal picture of the nineteen who have arrived, and what they have done.

LITTLE LUCY JONES—by Faith Baldwin. Dorine Dale never quite made a go of her mother-made destiny in the movies—but in the eyes of one man she was a whale of a success as Little Lucy Jones!

THE LAW AND MINERVA McCANN—by Arthur Train. First of a new series by the author of Tut and Mr. Tut. Her husband is a judge, but oh, how the Law sits up and does tricks when Minerva runs smack into the statute of limitations!

ITALY IN THE YEAR XII E. F.—by Anne O'Hare McCormick. "Is America following Italy?" Mussolini asked her. He smiled at his own question, but the JOURNAL's correspondent found in the Fascist Government an amazing number of revolutionary changes that we are just adopting.

ALSO ... Two powerful anonymous manuscripts—one a plan for the happiness of CHILDREN OF DIVORCE, the other the story of an actress in IMPERSONATION OF A LADY ... The mystery of THE CROOKED LANE, by Frances Noyes Hart ... A story of disturbing laws, STRAINED RELATIONS, by Helen Hull ... Fashions for little women, SHORT OR SMALL, LET'S LOOK TALL ... Recipes ... Fashions ... Home Furnishings ... Gardens ... 38 features—all in the great March issue of the LADIES' HOME JOURNAL.

TWO YOUNG MEN SHOT IN ROADHOUSE BRAWL

Seven Persons Under Arrest
After Affray at East Side Resort.

Two young men were shot and seriously wounded early today in a brawl at The Maples, a roadhouse at 5707 Collinsville road, three miles north of East St. Louis. The wounded, who were taken to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, are Paul Koste, 20 years old, 700 North Seventy-third street, East St. Louis, and Withold Plantis, 20, 1108 Exchange avenue, East St. Louis.
Koste was shot twice in the chest and Plantis once. Five men and two women are under arrest in a police investigation of the affray which was said to have started when a man in the place took $2 from the youths and refused to give them change for their bill of $1.30.

Koste and Plantis entered the place shortly after midnight with two companions, Francis Peck, 21, and Tony Stanisic, 20, both of East St. Louis. They ordered sandwiches and beer, according to Peck and Stanisic, and shortly afterward two young women they did not know joined them at their table and ordered sandwiches.

A little later, they said, a man they supposed was an employee appeared at their table with the bill. Plantis and Peck produced $2 in bills, which the man pocketed, saying, "That'll cover it." The young men protested, a quarrel ensued in which Koste joined, and the man drew a pistol and fired twice at Koste and once at Plantis. He was joined by another man who knocked Peck out with a chair.

Stanisic, who had not participated, began helping his friends to their automobile and was assisted by the man who fired the shots and others. Before leaving, Stanisic tried to get license numbers of an automobile outside, but men standing outside were in front of the plates, he said. He then drove to the hospital.

The proprietor, Harold Young, his wife, were later arrested and denied they knew the identity of the man who fired the shots. Another man, said by police to be an ex-convict, was identified by Peck as the one who wielded the chair. The young women were also arrested, but denied knowing the man who fired the shots.

Paris Laughs Again.
Eyes Taped 23 Days.
Marrying Haphazard.
$15 a Word, and Cheap.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1934.)

PARIS having had its fling, "reds" and "royalists," having shot each other sufficiently and denounced the republic, have gone to bed.

The republic goes on, as it will do for many a year, barring Fascism. Seventy-one-year-old Gaston Doumergue takes the reins, and is uproariously welcomed in Paris.

Uncle Sam is steadily increasing his gold reserve. He had more of it yesterday, figured in dollars, than he ever had before, so he also is happy.

Edward G. Bremer, young bank president of St. Paul, 36 years old, kidnaped and wounded about the head, his eyes kept closed with adhesive tape for 22 days, is released. His father paid a ransom of $200,000 in $5 and $10 bills, which weighed 50 pounds and filled two cardboard suit boxes. United States detectives are looking for 10 or 12 kidnapers.

Repeal of prohibition has discouraged bootleggers, but will probably promote kidnaping.

J. H. Blumensohn of Columbia University, sent to Brazil by the Rockefeller Foundation, found interesting Indians, called the Kaingang tribe. These Indians solve one of civilization's problems by marrying both the daughter and the mother. No mother-in-law difficulty there.

In former times the Indians practiced extensive polygamy and group marriage, several men and several women being married to each other at the same time.

There is no marriage ceremony, and when the Kaingangs kill each other in family feuds, divorce quarrels, or for other numerous reasons, there is no punishment provided. Also there is no moral code.

The good will be glad to hear that the tribe is dying out; not expected to last long.

Charles Dickens wrote a life of Christ in 14,000 words for his children. They would not sell or allow it to be published. Now the last is dead and the brief manuscript sells for $15 a word, $210,000, not including the original itself, in Dickens' handwriting. That manuscript itself will sell for a big price some day. Dickens could not have imagined all this when he was a young, struggling writer in London.

In Chicago, Protestant clergymen, answering a questionnaire sent by the School of Education of Northwestern University, decide, by an overwhelming vote, that God does not "send storms, earthquakes and other disasters to punish people for their sins." It was already known, without asking anybody, that God does not send comets to the earth to wipe us out, since comets go on regular fixed errands. How much energy was wasted in old days, ringing church bells to drive away storms and the devils supposed to ride on them.

Seventy-four per cent of the clergymen said God does not keep a big book with a record of all our wicked deeds in it. That may relieve you considerably.

And 20 per cent believe there is a hell where you actually burn up. It should relieve many of us, completely. Protestantism has changed since old Puritan days, when the fortunate, saved and in heaven, were said to find their happiness greatly increased by permission to look down and see friends and relatives burning in hell.

How little a rabbit knows about fate and the higher intelligence that controls it. Volcanic eruptions killed small game on Alaska's Kodiak and Afognak islands. After Mt. Katmai exploded, more than 20 years ago, all rabbits vanished. The Government CWA money has been spent hiring Indians to drive tens of thousands of rabbits into traps. They are caught alive and sent to the stricken islands. When they get there they probably say to themselves: "How nice of Uncle Sam to take all this trouble for us."

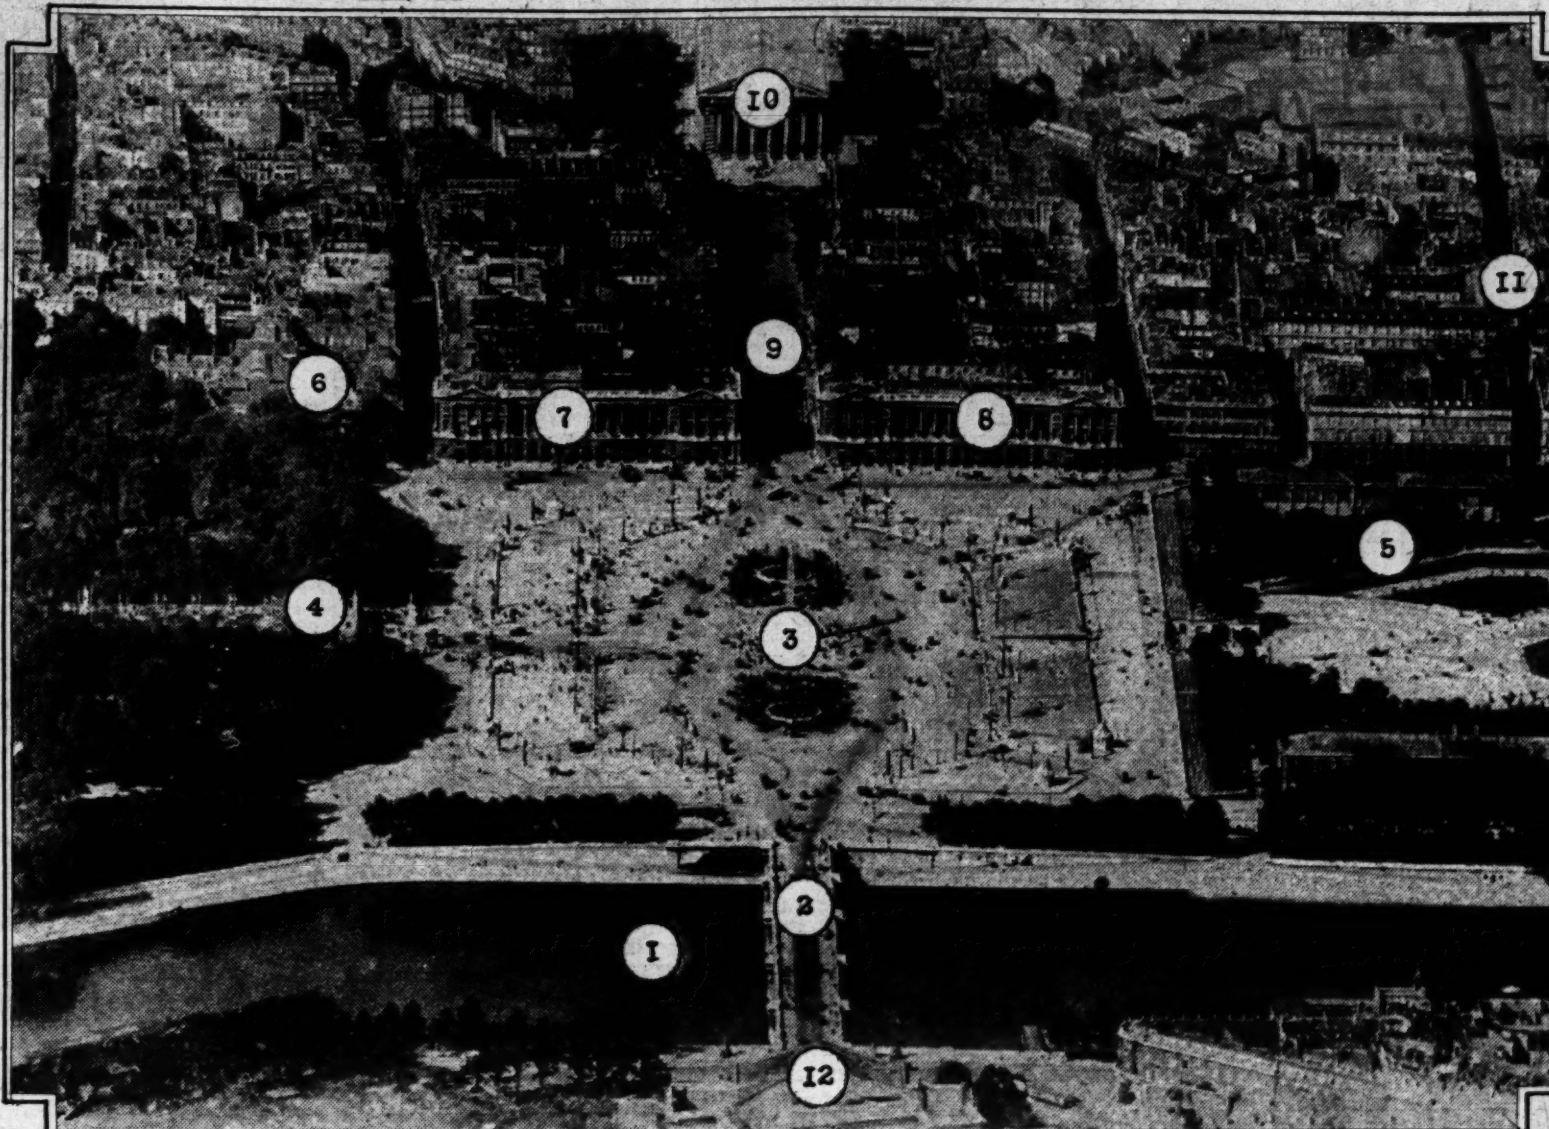

The fact is that they are sent to provide food for bears, and for the more valuable fur-bearing animals. How could the rabbits possibly imagine or understand that?

How can we two-legged things hope to imagine, or understand, why it is that we are transported here from Heaven knows where and what it is that we are supposed to do here.

At McGraw, N. Y., four dogs led by a police dog amused themselves with a little girl, Joyce Hammond, 6 years old, bit her repeatedly, tangled one of her arms. She is in the hospital. Justice of the

The Seine River (1) was the barrier, and the Pont de la Concorde (2) the highway over which the thousands gathered in the Place de la Concorde (3) wished to cross. The rioters overflowed into the Champs Elysees (4), the Tuileries Gardens (5) and about the American Embassy (6) during the disturbances. Special guards were placed about the Embassy, as well as the Hotel Crillon (7), and the Ministry of Marine (8), and the Rue Royale (9), where previous rioting had occurred, leading to the Madeleine Church (10), were also guarded against the mob. Some desultory fighting occurred on the Avenue de l'Opera (11), but the main object of the riotous throng was the Chamber of Deputies (12), and blood was spilled at the Pont de la Concorde, when fire hoses and police batons failed to hold the crowd back from the bridge.

Lady Ashley Was London
Cinderella

Rose From Poverty to Luxury—Got Start Posing in Musical Show.

LONDON, Feb. 7. NO Cinderella ever had a more rapid and triumphant rise from poverty to luxury than Sylvia Hawkes, who as Lady Ashley was cast today in an "eternal triangle" role in a London divorce drama and the world's head-line newspaper on Feb. 3, 1927, when she became the bride of Lord Ashley, heir of the Earl of Shaftesbury, at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, London. She was only 5 years removed from the

LADY ASHLEY, squalor of an English "pub," and was then an actress in "The Whole Town's Talking."

She was 30 and her Lord was 26. At 15 she had left the "pub" operated by her former stablehand father to be a dressmaker's mannequin. Her beauty attracted attention and she was taken into a musical comedy chorus.

She set the whole town talking before she ever appeared in a play of that name by doing a scene in the "Midnight Follies" clad in what observers thought was a scanty undergarment. The pose and her pose got her so much publicity that she had her name in lights when Lord Ashley became her devoted admirer.

From the moment that his attentions to the actress became known, Lord Ashley had the violent opposition of his family to buck. And when Lord Shaftesbury was asked a few days before the marriage for comment on reports of the intended nuptials, the Earl declared angrily: "There will be no marriage. There has been a misunderstanding."

On the same day, Lady Dorothy Ashley-Cooper, Lord Ashley's sister declared: "Such an alliance is unthinkable."

On the morning of the wedding day, Lord and Lady Shaftesbury left their Elizabethan mansion, Holmby House, in a limousine that roared along the road 120 miles to London. They reached St. Paul's Church just as their son and their unwanted daughter-in-law were leaving—man and wife.

The Countess of Shaftesbury, lady of the bed chamber to Queen Mary, never had seen the bride until that moment. Her husband was in a towering rage, but she was moved to say, of Sylvia, according to her friends: "She is radiantly beautiful."

The Countess also predicted, her friends aver, that London society never would receive the ex-Follies girl.

BUT in this the proud mother was mistaken. A short time after the marriage it was noted that while Lord Ashley and his bride were strolling in Hyde Park, the royal limousine happened to roll by and her majesty, the Queen, leaning forward, nodded to them.

After that the ex-Follies girl, the pub-keeper's daughter, was accepted. But not for long.

Almost a year to the day after her Cinderella marriage, Lady Ashley left her Lord and returned to West Halkin street and her friends of Follies and chemise dancing days. Again she became a center of the gayest parties in London. The following July no doubt remained that they were separated, for Lord Ashley inserted an advertisement in London newspapers announcing that he would no longer be responsible for debts contracted by his wife. That was long before Lady Ashley was introduced to Douglas Fairbanks Sr. at a party given him on one of his trips to Europe several years ago, and long before their names were first coupled.

Lord Ashley did not withdraw support, however, and he refused to consider a divorce until this year because of the opposition of his family. Extremely high church in their views, they were as bitterly opposed to a dissolution of the 'twos as they had been to the marriage.

It's Time to Talk About Suits
A Style Article by a St. Louis Girl Who Knows Clothes

Miss Mary Francis Day is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Day. She is a member of the Junior League.

GRANTED that winter is not over yet, nevertheless, it is not too early to begin to think seriously about a new spring suit. From now on, there will be no number of days when a heavy winter coat will be like a dead weight hanging from one's shoulders and for such days a suit, such as the one illustrated, is ideal.

The suit that I am wearing is made of knobby woolen material and is blue in color. The skirt has two kick pleats in the front and two in the back and has a belt attached to its top.

The blouse of the coat has plain fitted lines and down its front marches a long row of bright silver buttons. On each sleeve there are more silver buttons, six on the upper arm and two on the cuff.

The blouse is of blue and white waffle crepe. Up the front extends four more pairs of buttons placed at the end of inverted tucks. The front extends into a circular collar and the blouse fastens down the back with buttons covered with the blue and white crepe.

The sleeves are long and fairly tight and the button arrangement is the same as the back of the blouse. The hat is of cellophane braid with a bow on the top and is one of the new off-the-face, down-in-the-back models.

This suit, complete with the accessories, may be worn practically any place and at any time for informal affairs, and I have a feeling that it won't be given a moment's rest until far into the summer.

Correct Usage
On a Man and Woman Meeting

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: I N a recent column you touched upon the matter of walking with a lady on the street and removing the hat when talking to a lady on the street. Won't you go further? I confess I am influenced by European travel, but it does seem superfluous to be continually switching from one side of a lady to the other, sometimes every block or two. And it seems to be a bit overpolite to be holding one's hat in the hand often for 20 minutes or more. I appear also that men of evident breeding are less likely to observe the more or less exaggerated social forms than the socially ambitious.

Answer: As I have written before, etiquette used to require a gentleman to stand bareheaded, no matter how cold the wind or how torrid the sun, for so long as a lady was pleased to stand and talk to him. At present he would take off his hat to shake hands and then, unless middle-aged or very punctilious, put it on again. Curb side is gradually giving way to walking at a lady's left, to avoid the switching you speak of.

Dear Mrs. Post: I seem to be something apart from the civilized world by the attitude of my new friends in this town, where my husband's business brought us. I was brought up in England and have never been able to eat in what you call "squares" fashion. Among the cultured in Boston I never saw it, nor during my visits to New York. The English, whom all travelers must admit have the best table manners in the world, never do it, and they don't eat as fast as the average Americans do. Something else I've noticed lately is that older people use small pieces of bread as a pusher for vegetables. I was never taught to consider this as proper, but it certainly seems to make eating more expedient and neater and perhaps it is permitted in good taste.

Answer: As I have written before,

Old Styles Revived
In Spring Displays

PARIS. — Taffeta bathing suits, pinafrocs and drop-shoulder evening gowns reminiscent of styles 30 years ago have marched back in the 1924 spring fashion pageant. Red and blue taffeta bathing suits, like those mother wore, are designed with sleeveless tops and thigh-length skirts. They are accompanied by a tailored hip jacket and creased trousers of wool and linen.

Beige silk jersey pinafrocs dresses are combined with demure, long-sleeved frocks having a detachable bibbed apron tying in the back. Other frocks of blue wool and brown linen have high collars and three-tiered lower sleeves of linen or white cotton lace. Waist lines and skirt lengths are normal and the silhouette is fitted and slender. Stiff black faille evening gowns are designed with sweeping skirts and a drop shoulder line and, edged with a frill of white lace, recall the mode of 1900.

There are scores of ensembles of navy and beige wools, beige linens, and cotton combining a slender skirt and a three-quarter length coat hanging loose or belted at the waist. High-collared bright taffeta or white and embroidered organdy blouses have jabots. Other blouses are of gray striped artificial silk and of a three-quarter length tunic design.

zigzag eating is a local American custom not necessary to follow. I find a small crust of bread rather better than chasing rolling peas with a fork, or the other alternative of a barricade made with a knife blade. This last can be inoffensive if the handle is held in the left hand, pointing downward. On the other hand, it can be very offensive, indeed.

Defensive Bids and Doubles
Must Be Sound in This System

By P. HAL SIMS

I AM so often asked: "In your system, what must you hold to make an overall when they open the bidding against you?" Unless I am prepared to give a regular lecture of long duration, I am unable to answer this question directly, and so must reply in a somewhat vague manner. For fear of misleading the questioner by an incomplete reply, I may have at times appeared to be discursive in evading a definite statement.

And, unfortunately, the fact is that by bicker and expensive experience in the early days of contract, I found that the auction theories of overcalls and negative doubles are disastrous in contract. In the present game, I find it advisable to handle this department of the game from a Strategic Viewpoint Rather Than Any Count of Values.

Nowhere, perhaps, is the radical difference between auction and contract more apparent than in the matter of defensive bidding, which of course, includes both the overall and the double. Let me give you my theory, which works very well for me and should work as well for you. It is the result of intensive experience and testing; it originated from the realization that I was losing thousands of points unnecessarily by applying my auction defensive tactics to contract. Perhaps you are suffering in the same manner. Certainly the writers and experts have done little or nothing to shed fresh light on this aspect of contract.

What Was the Situation in Auction? In auction, the double was virtually the only forcing bid which could be employed. It can at any time be used only when your opponents have bid against you—usually when they have opened the bidding. I believe that no forcing bid is justified unless it contains the justification of intrinsic soundness—unless it can foresee a reasonably safe outcome. Both for technical and psychological reasons, it is hard to compel your partner to take action independently of his own judgment unless you can handle every situation which may be anticipated as a result of

Why Do All
Mamas Ask
For Medal?

All These Heroics About Motherhood Are Bunk, This Writer Declares.

By Elsie Robinson

I AM a mother. I am more grateful for that experience than for anything else in my life. I firmly believe that no profession can possibly give the average woman such pleasure, power and peace as motherhood—or such a proud position in her world, provided she makes good.

Yet I am convinced that most of the tributes paid to motherhood are pernicious bunk—and that motherhood, itself, is being increasingly used as a vicious racket.

Why this wild, indiscriminate praise for motherhood? It is no unique achievement to be a mother. It is a painful process, but rarely deserving of the wreaths it gets.

The simple fact is that few of us decide to be mothers. We do not walk, voluntarily, into the jaws of death. We are not heroic adventurers, self-sacrificing martyrs. We are human beings, warm with life, and motherhood is part of the process—frequently a most unwelcome part.

Moreover, to a real woman, motherhood is worth any price she may have to pay for it. Never yet did you hear a real mother whining about "all she had suffered" and expecting medals. It's only the quitters, parasites and racketeers who try to get extra dividends on something which should be its own reward.

Moreover, it does not follow that a mother is, necessarily, a prize exhibit—or even a desirable citizen. The birth of a child does not automatically equip a woman with qualities to which she has hitherto been a stranger. It does not add one whit to her intelligence or spirituality.

A mother must achieve character by her own exertions, exactly as other human beings achieve it. It is not thrust upon her. And it is cockeyed nonsense to assume that a woman is more tender, honest, brave, fair, generous, intelligent and reliable, merely because she is a mother.

Yet that is the general assumption—and no one is surer of it than Mamas, herself. As a spinster she may have been stupid, silly, selfish, lazy, bad-tempered and generally ornery. But once let her have a baby, and she considers herself endowed with superhuman wisdom and all the virtues.

BEAUTY CLINIC

Appreciation of the Ridiculous Saves Us From Many Stupid Acts.

By Rev. J. F. Newton

"THE thing's absurd," he was saying very earnestly. "It's ridiculous, and you will make a fool of yourself. My sure-fire cure in all such matters is, 'Don't be silly!' It's the acid test and never fails if one has any sense of humor, and it saves me from many a mess."

"Of course," he went on emphatically, "any man who is not color blind can tell white from black, and a green traffic light from a red one. But this thing is gray. Say out of it! Worse than wicked, it is stupid and from such matters is the good Lord cannot deliver us."

It sounded like an angry argument, but it was just one man telling another where to head in and get off. Old friends have a right to talk to each other like Dutch uncles. What it was all about does not matter, but the way he went at it made me think of many things.

A boy is an anxiety to his parents, a problem to his teachers, a puzzle to his friends. They argue with him, exhort him, threaten him to no effect. Then a slip of a girl of whom he is fond says, "Don't be silly!" Nothing else got under his skin, but those words did it.

As a fact of history it works in large affairs, too. Duelling was once a serious point of honor, but today it is a funny stunt on the vaudeville stage. We do not burn men for their ideas today; it is too absurd. Don't be silly—from how many bigotries it would save us!

At last war will be hooted off the earth as the supreme stupidity, as Cervantes made the vanities of chivalry a joke, and it had to go. For men to stand up and shoot each other down does not settle anything; it shows a lack of sense and that is finally fatal.

There was a rich man who built bigger barns to house his grain while poor men starved at his door. Jesus did not say he was a sinner, he said, "Thou fool!" For some men have more than they need while others have nothing at all is not simply unjust, but idiotic.

All of us need to invoke forgiveness as sinners, but the prayer that fits us best most of the time is, "God be merciful to me, a fool!" (Copyright, 1924.)

When carrying a sirloin steak where there is a choice of tenderloin and sirloin, serve two smaller slices to a person, one of each part rather than one large slice of all tenderloin or all sirloin. In this way each person gets a taste of both parts and no one is left with a lesser section. It shows up the good carver who serves a steak in this fashion.

Refrigerators should never be kept in a cellar if it is damp. Dampness is ruinous to them.

When it comes to being a parent nothing can convince her that the Hand Which Rocks the Cradle doesn't have a million times tougher deal than the Flat Which Brings Home the Bacon. So while the Old Man, as a husband, may get a little credit, as a Father he doesn't even have a look-in.

No, it isn't funny. To the contrary, it's probably one of the major tragedies of history. For something has certainly happened to our American males—and it's my guess that it's their Mamas.

Be that as it may, the power of American Mothers is rapidly being turned into one of our worst racketeers. Males must win their power by various achievements. A female need only become a mother.

WHICH mightn't be so bad, if Mamas were willing to concede a few points to Dad. But nothing doing! She may be honestly devoted to Dad—a tender wife, a wise partner, a grand companion. But, the motivation underlying contract bidding is entirely different from that of auction. The big hands were (unless flushed in distribution) played at low contracts in auction, while in contract they must be bid to their limit. It is not logical that defensive strategy and tactics intended to cope with them must be completely revised in order to tackle this absolute reversal of circumstances?

Lonely Women Can Find Many Divertissements

Modern Life Offers Various Interesting Activities Besides "Man-Hunting."

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr: NOW a widow of two years and quite alone, I am very discontented and unhappy; coming home from work, reading or sewing every evening, gets very tiresome. I like enjoyable company, the society of men and some place to go.

Usually I have found I can carry on with the same "date" about five times; then it becomes necessary to get out your boring gloves, for a good evening. I am not old, have a good education and have always been the home type of young woman. But with nothing to look to now, I get blue and disheartened. I do not care for wild parties, hence I will not go to one. I am 29 years old is it to do? I am considered quite attractive and have individuality which makes me often misunderstood—I am still a believer in the straight and narrow.

Much Bigotry

Appreciation of the Ridiculous Saves Us From Many Stupid Acts.

By Rev. J. F. Newton

HE thing's absurd," he was saying very earnestly. "It's ridiculous, and you will make a fool of yourself. My sure-test in all such matters is, Don't be silly! It's the acid test and never fails if one has any sense of humor, and it saves me from many a mess."

"Of course," he went on emphatically, "any man who is not colorblind can tell white from black, or a green traffic light from a red one. But this thing is gray. Snap out of it! Worse than wicked, it is stupid; and from dumbness even the good Lord cannot deliver us."

It sounded like an angry argument, but it was just one man telling another what to head in and get out. Old friends have a right to talk to each other like Dutch uncles. What it was all about does not matter, but the way he went at it made me think of many things.

A boy is an anxiety to his parents, a problem to his teachers, a puzzle to his friends. They argue with him, exhort him, threaten him to no effect. Then a slip of a girl of whom he is fond says, "Don't be silly! Nothing else got under his skin, but those words did it."

As a fact of history it works in large affairs, too. Duelling was once a serious point of honor, but today it is a funny stunt on the vaudeville stage. We do not burn men for their ideas today; it is too absurd. Don't be silly—it is too many bigotries it would have us!

At last war will be fought off the earth as the supreme stupidity, a Cervantes made the vanities of old Enghenhood a joke, and it had to go for men to stand up and shoot each other down does not settle anything; it shows a lack of sense and that is finally fatal.

There was a rich man who built bigger barns to house his grain while poor men starved at his door.
Jesus did not say he was a sinner,
he said, "Thou fool!" For some men to have more than they need while others have nothing at all is not simply unjust, but idiotic.

All of us need to invoke forgiveness as sinners, but the prayer that fits us best most of the time is "God be merciful to me, a fool!"

Women Are Unintelligent Bores

Professor C. E. M. Joad Advocates Their Exclusion From Most Activities

TO begin, it is well to dispel any conception of Prof. Cyril E. M.
Joad, master of arts, head of the Department of Philosophy and Psychology of Birkbeck College, the University of London, as a meek, hen-pecked husband, or a disgruntled misanthrope. It would be easy to get such an opinion from his view of women, but far from being a hen-pecked husband, he is a bachelor who has, in fact,
been quite a man among the ladies. Nevertheless, one gathers what he has to say about them, if he doesn't actually "hate em," he at least considers them decided distraction—sometimes pleasant, but more frequently unpleasant, disrupting serious thought and endeavor.

Prof. Joad was in St. Louis, the early part of the week, to lecture before the Junior League. He lectured on philosophy and psychology and kindred subjects and touched on the comparatively little on the subject of women; it might have been just a trifle mal-a-prop before a group of young St. Louis women. But in his autobiography, "A Belligerent Autobiography" is the subtitle, with the main title, "Fifth Rib," recently published by E. P. Dutton & Co., he goes more into details.

His adverse opinion of women is of fairly recent date, the result of his more mature deliberations. In youth, he confesses, he had a more favorable and romantic opinion.
In fact:

"Not only did I regard women as my intellectual equals," he writes,
"but believing their tastes, their interests, their emotions, their desires fundamentally the same as my own,
I looked forward to a marriage with a beautiful blue-stocking, at once soul-mate, and thought-companion-er, with whom I should spend an absorbed lifetime in the intellectual discussion of matters of abstract interest. That most women had neither taste nor talent for such a programme, I was, I think, even then dimly aware; but there must,
I conceived, be some who even now could reach the level I required, intelligent among women as I was intelligent among men, while potentially I held that most women were capable of the higher intellectual life. Educate women and give them a fair chance, and the world would teem with females anxious and fitted to discuss with me the problems of abstract philosophy and millennial Socialism."

At that time, Joad asserts, he was a member of advanced movements, favoring suffrage and an equal part in the affairs of the world for them.
Not only that, he was exceedingly susceptible to their charms, and he ended by discovering "only a wideness of ennui." And so he changed his mind.

Instead of believing in the further emancipation of women, he has come to the conclusion that the wider opportunities of the modern world have only made many women singularly unhappy. He inclines, in fact, to the view that the general level of instinctive happiness among the sex is lower than ever. A woman, he believes, unlike a man who is contented unless he has a positive reason for discontent, is discontented unless she has a positive reason for contentment. The result is, on her part, a constant search for entertainment, a conception that en-

PROF. C. E. M. JOAD.

the virtues of character and intellect.

As a result of this misconception,
he was attracted by women who were the antithesis of that of which his reason approved; with the further result that his associations, his contact with them, brought "terrible humiliations" of his reasoning self, "awful boredom," and he ended by discovering "only a wideness of ennui." And so he changed his mind.

Concerning the old bromide that
"the place for the woman is the home," Joad doesn't think so much of the idea. Women, he comments, cannot go back to the home, because there is no longer a home to go to. Modern labor-saving devices have stripped the home of the things which might keep her interested. The middle-class woman no longer bakes, cooks or washes; she takes the food out of this, and orders the things by telephone, and of shopping. When she has children, she hires other people to care for them. So she is left with her energies unused and her interests un-awakened.

On the other hand, when a woman attempts to get into the world of affairs, she is forced to take a subordinate position. Or if by sheer ability she forces herself into the same positions as those held by men, she gets paid less.

HOWEVER, do not get the impression that Joad is sympathizing with women under the injustice that it is not injustice, that there is some method in the "world's churlishness," for he feels that women are unsuited to the world of affairs. If they do have the ability to do things well, they do not do them easily; they are fussy and unnecessarily conscientious, causing a sense of strain, and often in achieving efficiency losing the womanhood and also their humanity. They cannot master anything well enough to be at play with it.

Put them in positions of power and authority and they are in-ferable," is his view. "How well one knows them, those principals, head mistresses, women staff clerks, supervisors and manageresses, continuous and bad-tempered, polite to superiors, rude to inferiors, maintaining a pedantic adhesion to the letter rather than the spirit of the rules, afraid to bend for fear they may break. They are unjust; they behave abominably to young women who are pretending to be their equals; they are given to favoritism, and inspire hatred in those who are unfortunate enough to be governed by them."

After asserting that women are given to prejudices, Joad proceeds to admit that he is prejudiced on this particular subject. His dealing with women in authority have always turned out badly; whenever subject to their power, he has "been made to suffer." Furthermore, he does not find them as good companions as men, since they are so anxious and well informed; they talk, nourish strange grievances, and are overquarreling. He stresses his idea that women are seldom invited out in group gatherings for their own benefit; they are in nine cases out of 10, merely the "male attachments"; they are asked because of the social necessity of asking the wife when you ask the husband. Not more than 5 per cent are asked on their own merits. Women are rarely at ease with ideas, they do not stimulate the intellect or intelligent conversation. In short, he concludes that "from good company and good talk women should be absent."

Hears About
A New Star

Elizabeth Bergner of London
Is Latest Find of the Film Makers.

By Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.
LONDON'S greatest theatrical sensational of the moment is Elizabeth Bergner who played
"Catherine, the Great" opposite Douglas Fairbanks Jr. So impressed was Joseph Schenck with Miss Bergner's performance in the stage play, "Escape Me Not," that he promptly signed her as a twentieth century star and purchased the screen rights to her play.
Schenck said that he figured "Escape Me Not" would run in London for nearly a year. As soon as it closes Miss Bergner who is blonde and something to look at will furnish a little competition in Hollywood for Garbo, Dietrich and Sten.

Radio's big musical moment centers around "The Gay Divorcee" which is the co-star flaming-haired Ginger Rogers and nimble-footed Fred Astaire. Pandro Berman, just home from Europe, is concentrating on this production which will also have Helen Broderick of "As Thousands Cheer" fame, in a prominent singing role.

The star rush is on. More and more names are being signed by busy producers. Jack Warner who has been patting on the shoulder by his two brothers for making an unusually large number of box office winners these last few months, is bringing Colin Clive and Robert Gleckler to look at Hollywood's fast-growing population.

Chatted with Robert Sherwood about "Marie Antoinette." He has been brought out here by Irving Thalberg, to put the finishing touches on the scenario for Norma Shearer. Stefan Zweig's book will not be changed, according to Bob, who says he has instructions to bring in all those last unhappy moments of the ill-fated Queen.

A close friend of Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and one who is constantly in the company of the film-land's most famous expatriate in London, furnishes a little surprise note. He says Doug may have shown a preference for Lady Ashley last year, but his heart at this moment is certainly elsewhere. If this is true, you can imagine the dashing Doug's state of mind when he was named as co-represent by Lord Ashley!

Help your baby build

• a well-shaped head
• a full chest
• strong back
• straight legs

Every mother is anxious for her baby to have a beautifully developed framework. Every mother wants her baby to build sound, well-spaced teeth.
Now authorities say that with plenty of one factor
—Vitamin D—these features will be developed.

Babies get some Vitamin D outdoors from the sun.
But bad weather, clouds, smoke, fog, prevent them from receiving enough from sunshine alone. Mother can supply the additional amount they need—with Bottled Sunshine—good cod-liver oil.

See that your baby gets it regularly every day.
Good cod-liver oil also provides another important factor babies need for growth and good general resistance—Vitamin A!

Not all cod-liver oils, however,
supply an abundance of both vitamins.
Many physicians recommend Squibb's. They know it supplies more vitamins and is less expensive to use. Get it for your baby! At any good drug store.

The Lone WOLF'S Son

—By—
LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR.

"MADemoiselle must forgive this intrusion without knowing. It isn't a time to stand on formalities—I am sure you know."

She gave a half-nod but said nothing. The boy's voice was so strained that she would hardly have known it; but that in which he pursued, addressing the gunman, was unlike any she could have imagined might have issued from his lips—each word that left them had the crack of a whip.

"So far, good. Give me that key." Maurice deftly slipped it from the gunman's fingers, and dropping back without turning from him, shut the door, locked it, and made it doubly fast by shooting its supplementary bolt. "Now over at that corner," the pistol, prodding the small of the back, steered the fellow to the corner farthest from the door. "Take that chair, sit down, keep your face to the wall, and don't move unless I give you leave."

"What's the idea?" the gunman tried a new tack, emboldened by the addition of a witness to their number. "Tryin' to make a person believe you'd shoot them down like a dog with a lady present?"

"Believe what you like," Maurice retorted. "But do as I tell you, or the least you may expect is that I will—in your American phrase—bend this gun over your head."

He smiled reassuringly at Fenno, but the smile was fleeting; he had time to pay her no more attention till he had seen Fenno seated as he directed. And even then his eyes were seldom all for her, but most of the time constant to his prisoner. "You're all right, Fenno? They didn't they weren't brutal, with you?"

"Brutal? But they did nothing, really, except tell me I'd find Father in here, and as soon as the door was open, push me through and lock me in! I've been half beside myself, of course. What does it mean? What about Father?"

"I fancy this animal can tell us. What of Mr. Crozier, my friend? He was not, of course, involved in any motor accident?"

"Gwan," the gunman growled. "As if you didn't know that was a stall!"

"You can't tell me where he is, then?"

"How do I know? Fowler was sayin' something about an old man bel'n out of town and not expected back before tomorrow night, but I wouldn't want to swear to it."

"And he has not been hurt in any way?" the bewildered girl persisted.

"Nah, nah! That was all a stall, like I'm tellin' you."

"To lure you here, Fenno, the better to rob you of the emeralds."

"Instead of leavin' them for your boy friend to take, lady, some time when he found time and felt good and like it—inside a week was what he promised Tess Boyce last night on the steamer."

Fenno, who in her agitation had, in an unconscious gesture of confidence, let a hand come to rest on Maurice's sleeve, now withdrew it and fell back with questioning eyes that all at once seemed abnormally large and dark.

"DON'T let him con you into thinkin' he's just an innocent kid and hadn't no hand in this show," the gunman persevered. "He's gummed into it up to his ears along with the rest of us. Ask him yourself, if you don't want to believe me."

She said in a low voice one word: "Maurice!"

"A lie out of whole cloth," the boy with a shrug assured her. "Yet, I confess, like most lies it has a certain substratum of truth."

In the same voice of contained emotion, but now in French, the girl demanded: "You confess it?"

"It is true," Maurice told her in the tongue she had preferred to English in order that, he supposed, their confidences might be private. "I am beyond trying, or even wishing, to deceive you, Fenno. It's true I am a thief, much as my father was in his day, and that I planned to take advantage of your friendship offered, when opportunity offered, the emeralds. It is true, if you must know, that I had stolen them once already, the first night out on the Navarre; but that time it was my father who out-thought me, found them where I had hidden them, restored them to your mother."

"I thought as much! And the next time—"

"You wrong me if you think that!"

The protestation was interrupted by a bitter echo: "Wrong you!"

"I swear to you, Fenno, I had nothing to do with that affair, except that it was I who found them hidden in my father's trunk, and having substituted the zircons, threw them in through the purser's window in the packet marked with your mother's name."

"Why?"

"Because I conceived, like a dunce, it was my father who had stolen them, and feeling certain that his luggage would be searched, I thought to shield him. Also—the boy took a deep breath and braced himself to bear her gaze—"because I had been thinking the business odd and come to the conclusion that it would be more sensible to wait till the emeralds had been brought ashore before I tried again."

"Did you have to tell me that?"

"I intend that there shall never again be anything but the truth between you and me, Fenno."

"Oh, these mad infatuations for the truth that men contract from time to time—and always when it's most untimely!" The girl gave a

Gift Hints for Valentine Day From the Stores of St. Louis

By Sylvia

TODAY'S store news bows to St. Valentine, who has survived decorations, changing money standards and all the rest to keep the sweetheart tradition of Feb. 14 going. The women come first so here are a few gift suggestions, gleaned from the large collections in the shops—some practical and others inclined to the frivolous.

What woman wants her best beau to be practical when he can find a sumptuous evening ensemble that makes her look like a million dollars? Clips, earrings and a bracelet comprise the set. (And when I say clips I mean it because two or three are necessary under the new order of things). Dainty flower clusters in pastel colorings combine with rhinestones in a way that would make every girl want to be more feminine. You can't appreciate the daintiness of this set unless you see it.

Since the jewelry ensemble doesn't cost a lot of dough a man with some extra shekels in his pocket may want to augment his Valentine gift. That being the case, he couldn't do better than to add a velvet flower tiara in those same delicate pastel shades and a beaded evening bag. The bag that suits the color scheme best has pearl and gold beads on a white flax foundation. A pointed flap which snaps down to protect the vanities inside adds a design of the pastel beads.

Women who have gotten so accustomed to being practical will think a man has a good business head if he provides a sturdy bag for daytime use. But they won't object to him getting a stylish handbag. Saffia is the name given to the lustrous grain leathers that are shining examples of springtime chic. Red clay, by the way, is a color to consider (the shade being a glorification of Mississippi mud). It's supposed to be a smart accent for navy or black.

Handkerchief counters are flaunting their wares to such a degree that it is a brave man searching for a Valentine gift who dares to venture past them. Let a woman forget that red and white are the colors of this sweetheart day, gift hankies exploit them. A chiffon square of red and white plaid will be stunning to carry with a white evening gown. And those hand-blocked linens with the same color scheme in floral designs will serve for style as well as snifflers.

Suppose a beau can't decide whether to say his message with candy or flowers, it is not necessary that he flip a coin. He can get up now. If you like, monsieur, and turn around and lend us your counsel."

The man turned a blank stare over his shoulder.

"Lend you what?"

"I am inviting you to confer with us, tell us what to do, how to escape."

"DON'T kid yourself. You can't."

"Don't say that. Take time to think it over. I have already found your second thought most useful, remember. There must be a way."

"Yeah? And what do you think would happen to me if I knew any way out and told you two about it? It would be as much as my life is worth."

"It will be all your life is worth," Maurice pleasantly reminded him, "if you know of a way and refuse

Prices Rise On Potatoes

In St. Louis

Wax Beans Arrive From Florida—Cabbage Is Plentiful at Low Cost.

THE price of potatoes has been steadily mounting in a matter of quite some concern to us, since they have come to occupy such an important place in our daily diet. But potatoes did not always hold such a position of importance. An early English writer referred to the potato as "a root found in the New World, consisting of knobs held together by strings, and which, perhaps, if you boil with butter, may serve to keep body and soul together among those who can find nothing better." Potatoes were for some time banned in Scotland on religious grounds, because the potato was not mentioned in the Bible.

In those days, opinions were rife as to whether the potato should be converted in cooking, into a savory or a sweet dish. The following recipe was given to the women of 1770: "Have your pie dish lined with a crust. Lay in butter and potatoes, boiled until very tender, with whole spice, marrow, dates, the yolks of hard-boiled eggs, blanched almonds, pistachio nuts, candied peels of orange, citron and lemon. Close the pie with a crust, bake and serve with wine, butter and sugar." With a little experimenting, it might well make an extraordinary dish even today.

Yellow wax beans from Florida have been added to the various types of green beans which have been in the market. Beans are more plentiful and there is still some hothouse asparagus to be had at slightly higher prices.

The price of old cabbage remains about the same, but new cabbage has been going down, due to the exceptionally heavy supply on the market, and the price is low for this time of year.

Celery is still cheap, but cucumbers are high, although the price has shown a slight downward trend. Cauliflower remains reasonable and raw cauliflower salad may be a pleasing variation. This salad is simply made by adding chopped onion and pepper to raw cauliflower, placing in a nest of lettuce, and adding French dressing.

Lettuce prices have been fluctuating, but the California iceberg type is still very cheap.

There are more radishes on the market now than for the past several weeks. Local beets, which are a new arrival and are fairly high.

The State of Washington is sending us hothouse rhubarb of the strawberry variety in carloads and the quality is very fine. The price is somewhat lower than it has been for several weeks.

Spinach is cheap for a shipped-in product, but green peppers are rather high. Tomatoes are coming from Florida and Texas and some Ohio hothouse tomatoes are being offered. The celery cabbage now on the market is raised in hothouses of Michigan and Ohio.

Strawberries are a little cheaper and coconuts, too, are selling at a lower price.

There are a few pears being offered—the winter nells and flemish beauties—which is rather unusual for this time of the year.

Another Picture

Before hanging that none-too-fine pictures on the wall, consider whether it will really make the room more beautiful or simply fill the space.

Whose Fault?

"Kept after school!" And it isn't the child's fault, or the teacher's. His mother is to blame. How can a boy get his lessons when his senses are dulled day after day by doing with drastic purgatives? When a child's bowels are irregular they need help, of course. But not some drastic drug to upset the stomach, perhaps weaken the entire system; or form the laxative habit. On the right, parents will find a happy solution of this problem: Be sure bottle says "California!"

When a Child Won't Study

Here's a boy who gets good marks has time and energy for play. He never ill, hardly ever has so much as a cold. When he does show symptoms of being sluggish, his mother knows just what to do. FOR thirteen years St. Louis has had a tax rate of 85c on each $100 assessed valuation. And St. Louis school children have had free text books, free pencils, free supplies and many other substantial advantages.

But unless YOU vote YES at the Special Election on February 20, we automatically go back to the 60c rate which prevailed years ago. Under the present reductions in assessed valuations, this old rate means only about 49c in actual revenue—and a heavy slash in funds available for the operation of our public schools.

But it means more than that. It may mean that school books can no longer be furnished free to St. Louis children. It means that pencils, erasers and other necessary supplies will have to be purchased by the children's parents. Ten dollars per child per year would be a fair estimate of the cost of these supplies.

Spring Styles Exhibited by

Paris Salons

By Adelaide Kerr

PARIS, Feb. 7.

WITH officials declaring there are almost as many American buyers here as last season, despite the fact that the dollar now buys 40 per cent less, fashion shows were enthusiastically into the second week of exhibitions decreasing what's what in the spring mode.

The day silhouette shown so far has stressed slender, youthful lines, molding the figure somewhat less closely than the winter's profile. Too, skirts were somewhat longer, necklines semi-high and waists natural—with novelty belts and buckles highly important.

Evening gowns favored a fitted elongated grande-dame mode, molding the figure. There were many trains and numerous exaggerated back wings standing out back of the hips or over the shoulder blades.

Organdies and flowered printed silks, naturally designed along freer and slir lines with fuller skirts. Many had covered shoulders.

Worth launched a colorful satiny evening gown with ruffled petticoat foundations of contrasting color. These gowns were accompanied with three-quarter length capes of double faced satin or full-length wraps covered with shimmering paillettes.

Worn with metal tiaras and diamonds, the same house presented new wool tulle in black and navy blue ensembles combining tailored frocks made over slips and unlaid jackets.

Duplicating Efforts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

LATEST gadget in Government is to end duplication of effort. Duplication of effort means five people doing the same thing at five various times.

It also means the consolidated taxpayer must foot the office bill without being able to foot the incumbent.

This effort in duplicate occurs mostly in State government. There you have the State, the county, the city, the district and the precinct all smacking away with rubber stamps.

In some states you can get taxed six different ways on a gallon of gasoline.

Go into any municipal building and try to get something accomplished with a note to some potentate whose name is on a glass door. They will push you around like a piano on a vaudeville stage.

Harlee Branch Announces Investigation Is in Progress — Army Ready to Fly Mail Feb. 19 or Earlier.

SEES NO REASON FOR HEARINGS

Companies Ask to Be Allowed to Present Case Before Business Is Taken From Them Under Cancellation Order.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Post-office Department officials said today an investigation was being made into foreign air mail contracts with a view to cancellation similar to that yesterday of domestic air mail contracts, which become effective Feb. 19. The War Department announced it would be ready to take up the work of flying the mail by that date or earlier. This statement concerning foreign contracts was made by Harlee Branch, Second Assistant Postmaster-General in charge of air mail, who announced simultaneously that a skeleton air map on which the Army would start carrying mail will be ready within two days. "The department is working out what it considers the primary and most essential lines in order to have them operating immediately when present contractors cease service," Branch said. He was not ready to indicate what the primary lines might be, but they were considered certain to cover cities in which Federal Reserve banks are situated. Branch said the department considered that the continuation of air facilities for the Reserve bank was important. Federal Reserve banks are situated in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Richmond, Atlanta, St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Dallas and San Francisco. Branch said that soon after a primary service had been established it would be enlarged. "The volume of mail carried and the territory served will guide our decisions," he said. "When we are completely organized the service will be at least just as comprehensive as it is." The department plans to use existing civil airports in order to keep employment as high as possible, giving preference to the civil port even where Army fields are situated nearby. Demolition with a single pen stroke of the air mail subsidy structure was accomplished on ground of collusion in obtaining contracts. Meantime private flyers of the air mails, stripped of their valuable contracts, today demanded a hearing. Operators holding contracts were quick to deny any collusion, some said that loss of the contracts might force them out of business. Operators Demand Hearing. Many demanded that they be given a hearing before the contracts were taken from them. There was no official comment on these demands today, but there was private talk in some administration quarters of a hearing at least for some of the contract-holders. Under the formal order canceling the contracts, issued by Postmaster-General Farley, it was indicated at the White House that some of the concerns stripped of their contracts would be able to bid on new air mail contracts for five years. The five-year provision is contained in the statute under which the order was issued. The President, ordering the Army and Department of Commerce to cooperate with the Postoffice Department for a period of the "emergency," indicated that some time would elapse before new contracts could be let. Sees No Reason for Hearing. Branch said today the department saw no cause for giving a hearing to companies whose contracts have been canceled, since that phase now is ended. Asked whether existing contracting companies would be allowed to bid in the near future if they reorganized, Branch replied: "I see no reason why a company could not reorganize but I believe Postmaster-General Farley would insist on a real reorganization. There must be no subterfuge or camouflage about the reorganization." Branch made it plain the Government
